Why Not Hunt Gold
Is the Rest Silence
One Kaiser's Life
Free, Nowhere to Go

By Arthur Brisbane

HODGE, Mojave Desert, Cal., Jan. 28—The world needs more gold, and may get it. France and Uncle Sam now control the world's supply, France with the highest per capita gold reserve. Hard times have sent prospectors back to the hills and mountains, their "good times easy jobs" in cities having vanished. You see more and more of them traveling this desert country, each, in his years of prospecting, probably passing great fortunes a dozen times. To prospect is one thing, to find is another.

Usually the prospector rides one donkey, two others following. One donkey carries the camping outfit, with blankets and "grub," the other carries prospectors' tools, and more food. Perhaps a few sticks of dynamite are carried by the more enterprising.

An occasional prospector, too old to ride long hours, drives two donkeys hitched to a two-wheel cart, a pole between them. Up hills and mountains too rough for his cart, he rides one donkey, leaving the other below.

These men often spend a lifetime without reward. More money has been put into gold mines and gold hunting than has ever been taken out. But even the oldest prospector never looks discouraged. Hope is back of the sunburned face and gray beard, and fortune is always just ahead. You need not feel sorry for him. Trying is the only thing in life worth while, possession is nothing. And he is trying, and full of hope.

A young gentleman spending his dead father's money in a fashionable gambling house might well envy the old prospector seeking a "grub stake" for just one more trip.

The multitude of seekers will find gold, undoubtedly, for it is everywhere in this Western country. Some, below with a hammer, might uncover wealth literally beyond the dreams of avarice, although water power, rich soil and oil have long since superseded gold in the public imagination.

Uncle Sam, himself, may add to Europe's indignation by discovering his own gold mines in the deep digging made necessary by the Boulder Dam enterprise. Innumerable tunnels must be made through the hills and, as Harry Carr suggests, "All these hills have been scratched by prospectors for many years, but few have been dug into."

Uncle Sam, digging deep, may discover new bonanzas. President Hoover, able engineer, will surely send young mining engineers with the diggers.

If you come out here and go prospecting you probably will find no gold, but you will find something better—health and knowledge of your country. Young men out of college next spring might invest $150 in three donkeys and an outfit, bring a book on mineralogy, a friend and advice which the government will gladly supply. In a few weeks of gold hunting, they might learn, in contact with the earth and with poor men, things that are not taught in college.

No trouble, as the late Senator Hearst said, in knowing when you have found gold. "If you think it is gold, it is probably pyrites, if it is gold, you will not think, you will know it." He found the Homestake gold mine, the Anaconda copper mine and other properties from which hundreds of millions of dollars have been taken, but don't come here expecting to get rich. You will not do that.

Not much room left for news, but in the desert that seems unimportant. It is all so far away. You read that a former United States Senator and Governor of New Jersey has killed himself, having some time since, in an election promised "to make New Jersey as wet as the Atlantic ocean," and you feel sorry for him. But when it is over, what does it matter.

If you have reached 50 you probably have more intimate friends dead than alive. They were so intensely alive and now they are so completely dead, whether life surprised the world with their genius, bullied it with their money, or "also ran," living and dying unknown. Is there a place in Einstein's, Jean's and Eddington's universe in which they meet and talk it over? Or is it true that "the rest is silence?"

The former kaiser reached his 72d birthday yesterday. He has seen both sides of the shield of fate. The writer saw him for the first time at Mentone, long ago. His grandfather, William, was alive then, and Sir Morell MacKenzie was operating on his father's throat to keep him alive that his wife, daughter of Queen Victoria, might become widow of the Emperor Frederick, not merely widow of a Prussian Crown Prince. She did become

25 FISHERMEN FLEE FIRE IN GLOUCESTER

Escape as Flames Sweep Institute and Police Station; Loss $40,000

Gloucester, Jan. 28—Aroused by policemen, 25 fishermen fled safely to the street early today, when a three-alarm fire swept through the Fishermen's Institute and the Police Station and District Court buildings at Duncan and Rogers sts.

The loss was estimated at $40,000. Patrolmen Norman Darling, Ralph Levine and John Garland, who awakened the lodgers in the Institute building, were the heroes of the fire.

The flames were not discovered until a hot-air explosion attracted the attention of a policeman. Smoke and flames were then issuing from the second and third floor windows of both structures, and it was impossible to determine in which the fire started.

Both buildings were three stories high and of brick and besides the lodging rooms and police quarters, housed clubrooms of veterans' and fraternal organizations.

$100,000 Loss by Blaze in Springfield

Springfield, Jan. 28 (AP)—One store was destroyed and four others damaged in a $100,000 fire today in the heart of the business section in Main st. Firemen battled for two hours before they brought the flames under control.

The Springfield branch of Jackson's Confectionery, Inc., was virtually wiped out, while the other four adjoining stores, Marcelle Millinery, United Men's Shop, Berger Hosiery Shop, and Levison's Women's Shop, suffered mostly from fire and water. The origin of the blaze has not been determined.

Jackson's loss was placed at $70,000.

Avalanche Kills 13 Hunting Lost Troop

Mondane, France, Jan. 28 (INS)—An Italian army captain and 12 soldiers were killed in an avalanche in the Italian Alps while seeking another company of soldiers missing since Saturday, according to word received here today.

Conflicting reports reached here regarding the fate of the first detachment. One rumor said the soldiers had returned safely; another declared they were still missing.

Mrs. Youngman and Son Are Improving

Mrs. William S. Youngman, wife of Lieut.-Gov. Youngman, and her son, William S. Youngman, Jr., were both said to be showing improvement today. Mrs. Youngman underwent an emergency operation Monday at the Palmer Memorial Hospital. Her son was stricken with intestinal grip at the same time.

Poincare Rumor Denied by Doctor

Paris, Jan. 28 (AP)—Rumors that Raymond Poincare's condition suddenly had grown worse went the rounds in Paris last night, but were denied today by his physician, Dr. Boidin, who said the health of the patient was as satisfactory as possible.

'Race to the Sea' Is Desperate Rush to Save Channel Port

THE LEADERS. Marshal Joffre, French commander-in-chief, and Field Marshal Sir John French, commanding the British forces in France, at their famous meeting at Melun early in September, 1914, when Marshal French pledged his fullest cooperation in the then impending battle of the Marne.

By MARSHAL FERDINAND FOCH.

THE SECOND PERIOD of the war which followed the Battle of the Marne, was baptized "The Race to the Sea." It sounds well but it does not give a true idea of the operations nor does it really reflect the idea on which these operations were based.

The race was towards the enemy. It was his right wing that we attempted to outflank and envelop; when he outstripped us, it was his effort to outflank us that we warded off. For he was trying by increased speed to envelop us in a maneuver similar to our own. This produced on each side a race towards the northern wing of the opposing army.

At the same time, we had to check the enemy's advance and immobilize him on the remainder of the front; and this front was getting longer and longer. As a result of this symmetrical maneuver, the northern wing moved at an ever-increasing speed

ELY READS HIS BUDGET TODAY IN HOUSE

Governor to Set Precedent by Appearing Before Joint Session; Crowd Expected

Breaking precedents set by his predecessors, Governor Ely today will present his budget in person to the Legislature.

The governor will read his recommendations from the speaker's rostrum in the House. Both branches of the General Court will be assembled there in joint session. A record attendance at the public gallery is being prepared for.

SEPARATE FROM $6 MILLION

One of the features of the message read by the author of the State tax log the years. This was a year ago was fixed at $7,000,000, the lowest on record since 1912.

It is expected that the budget will be segregated so that the amounts to be appropriated out of the current revenue can be reported separately from items making up the bond issue of $20,000,000 for additional highways and public buildings, which the governor has advocated.

NO MENTION OF MILLION

Under such a plan, parliamentary confusion will be avoided, it is said.

Items to be met out of current revenue and taxation, it was pointed out, require only a majority vote while those to be met by a bond issue require a two-thirds vote.

It is not anticipated by legislative leaders that the Governor will touch on the emergency fund of $1,000,000 at this time, but that he will later submit such information as he may have on this subject.

Ambassador Forbes Flees Fire in Tokyo

Tokyo, Jan. 28 (AP)—United States Ambassador W. Cameron Forbes had a rude awakening today. A group of Japanese firemen broke into the ambassador's house shouting "Hyaku! Hyaku!" meaning "Quick! Quick!" and warning Mr. Forbes his next door neighbor's house was in flames.

The firemen moved the ambassador's furniture into the garden. The adjoining residence burned to the ground.

Wales Pays Brief Visit to Bermuda

Hamilton, Bermuda, Jan. 28 (AP)—The Prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, reached here this morning aboard the steamship Oropesa, on the way to Buenos Aires. They resume their journey this afternoon.

Prof. Leitch, British Cancer Expert, Dead

London, Jan. 28 (AP)—Prof. Archibald Leitch, 52, British cancer expert, died today. He was director of the London Cancer Hospital and professor in the University of London.

He was in France during the war, retiring with the rank of major.

Navy Flier Killed as Plane Crashes

Santiago, Cuba, Jan. 28 (AP)—Dispatches to the newspaper Ahora today said Lieut. J. Mayers, 28, a United States Navy flier, had been killed when his plane plunged into the sea during a solo flight over Guantanamo Bay. The report said the body had been recovered.

GANDHI TO SEE INDIA LEADER

Bombay, Jan. 28 (AP)—Leaving a message to India's Nationalist millions that their fight for independence must go on, Mahatma Ghandi today departed for Allahabad, where are gathered most of the Nationalist working committee.

Gandhi will visit Pandit Moulal Nehru, father of Jawaharlal Nehru, president of the the India National Congress, and discuss Great Britain's offer of a qualified dominion status for India.

Indian delegates to the round table conference, now on their way home, today sent Lord Irwin, the viceroy a wireless message congratulating him upon his "statesmanlike decision to release Gandhi and the other Congress leaders."

The message expressed a hope that "this will restore normal conditions and that Nationalist leaders may now consider the scheme evolved at the round table conference in the spirit in which it was conceived.

Between April and July last year the legislative assembly in New Delhi was told today, 115 persons were killed and 1045 wounded during the civil disobedience campaign. Fourteen killed were soldiers and police.

8 MORE DEAD OF PNEUMONIA

While the number of influenza cases in Boston is increasing, lobar pneumonia is also taking a heavy toll, according to a statement by Deputy Health Commissioner Joseph Monahan today.

With widespread illness from colds and the grip filling the hospitals, Deputy Monahan announced 30 new cases of influenza reported this morning, bringing the total since last Saturday to 79, with no deaths.

On the other hand, while only 11 new cases of lobar pneumonia were reported today, there were 8 deaths, jumping the total for the week to 26 cases and 9 deaths.

The average for the past five years for the corresponding period was 58 cases of lobar pneumonia, with 17 deaths, and 16 cases of influenza with three deaths.

Deputy Monahan continues to regard the influenza situation as normal. The bulk of the wide-spread sickness he attributed to colds and the grip.

EX-RAIDER DEFENDS SELF ON STAND

Denies Ever Making Deal With Sullivan; Took Liquor Only on Warrants

On the witness stand in his own defense, Oliver B. Garrett today made a sweeping denial of all government allegations. He testified:

1—That he never demanded money from John F. Sullivan and never received any money from the Hotel Ritz proprietor.

2—That he never seized liquor at the Ritz without a search warrant and never had any understanding with Sullivan about raids.

3—That when he married his present wife he understood she had money; that he never gave her more than his salary to deposit in a bank and that he never made a deposit for her and that some of his own deposits were winings on fight bets.

4—That the reasons he failed to appear for trial last June were: Because the public mind was prejudiced; because he didn't like the idea of Judge Dillon being assigned; because he didn't wish to be examined by alienists again, and because he was being used as a political football in the district attorney contest.

The former liquor raider was called to the stand as the first witness on the 16th day of his trial as co-defendant with his wife and Lillian V. Hatch on charges of conspiracy to extort from Sullivan.

He testified before a crowded courtroom, a neat figure in a blue suit, blue shirt and blue tie, self-possessed, hands behind his back, half-leaning against the wall behind him, half facing the jury that will decide his fate.

Outside the court word spread quickly that Garrett at last was on the witness stand in his own defense—in the place he had occupied countless times as a guardian of the city's law and order—and

FACES GRILL

He testified under direct examination of his attorney, Herbert F. Callahan, for a little less than two hours before going under cross-examination of Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle. His direct examination was interrupted by one recess which followed a spell of coughing suffered by Mrs. Garrett.

Under questioning of the prosecutor he said he could not tell when he started to bet on fighters and couldn't tell who were the fighters he bet on. He couldn't remember where the first fight he bet on was held.

The last fight he bet on was the Sharkey-Maloney fight, but he couldn't remember when that was —the year—or how much he won or what he did with what he won. He couldn't remember whether his winnings were $200, $500 or $1000. His money was bet in New York at the Belvidere Hotel, he said, but he didn't know who took his bet.

"Did you ever have any conversation with John H. Sullivan where, in substance, you said he was making a lot of money at the Ritz and he would have to pay you so much a month?" Callahan asked him.

"No, sir," was the reply.

"Did you ever receive any money from Sullivan?"

"No, sir," he answered again.

"Did you ever have any understanding with Sullivan?"

And again he said, "No, sir."

He never talked with Sullivan regarding the employment of Miss Hatch, who went to work at the Ritz in the coatroom, he said, and he denied ever making any arrangement with Sullivan whereby the hotel man was to give money to Miss Hatch for him.

And, he said, he never told Sullivan he was to deliver any money to Mrs. Garrett.

He said he thought he raided the Ritz four times with his squad but that he went there "10 or 12, maybe more" times with his squad to note the conditions.

TELLS OF RAIDS

"On any of these occasions was there any seizure of liquor without a search warrant?" Callahan asked.

"No, sir," he said, in denial of Sullivan's accusation.

He never went to the Ritz on any occasion except police business, never went there with Mrs. Garrett or Miss Hatch, he testified.

He said he understood Mrs. Garrett had means when he married her and that he saw indication of her means.

"Did you, Mr. Garrett, while a member of the police department, particularly between 1924 and 1928, ever give your wife money to deposit in the bank more than you earned in salary as a police officer?" Callahan asked.

And again, "No, sir," was the answer.

Callahan asked him if he could give an explanation of $100 and $200 deposits in his bank account in the Exchange Trust Co., if such deposits were shown on the records.

WON ON FIGHTS

"Yes—I was a fight fan and I bet on the fights," he former liquor raider declared.

He won money on the fights, he said—small amounts.

Callahan then showed him deposit slips which had been identified by Wilbur F. Turner, handwriting expert, as being in his own handwriting where the deposits were to the account of Mrs. Garrett.

Denies Signing Deposit Slips for Bank Accounts of Wife

One by one he denied that he had written them. He could not remember ever having made a deposit in the National Rockland Bank, the Brookline Trust Co., the First National Bank of the Boulevard Trust Co., accounts of which have been introduced in evidence.

Asked to give his reasons for not appearing when his trial was scheduled last June, he said:

"First, I was in all the papers. The papers had written me up and had written this case up so much I thought I was prejudiced in the minds of the public.

"Second, I did not like the idea of a special judge, Judge Dillon, being brought from the western part of the state and being assigned to the case, and, third, I didn't like the idea of being ordered examined by two state doctors after already being examined by four city physicians. I thought that if I stayed away awhile that the public would see it differently and I would get a fair trial."

Callahan asked whether politics had entered into it, and he continued:

"At the time the election was on for district attorney and Dist. Atty. William J. Foley was being opposed by Mulhern and I was being used by a political football."

He had no consciousness of guilt, he said.

JOINED SQUAD

Under Callahan's first questioning, Garret testified that he joined the police force on Nov. 7, 1918, remaining at the Charlestown division until Feb. 10, 1922, when he was transferred to East Dedham st.

Fifteen days after his transfer he was detailed to the headquarters liquor unit.

He said he was 37, was married a second time on June 17, 1923 and went to live at 37 Alpine st., Dorchester, moving from there to 18 Parkvale ave., Brighton, where he lived about two years. He lived in Hingham until 1928, he said.

The ex-rander testified he had

Garrett Says 15,000 Arrests Were Made by Liquor Raiders

The liquor squad made between 15,000 and 17,000 arrests while he was attached to it, the ex-raider declared.

He met Mrs. Fraser through his wife, he said, and there was a breach in their friendship in 1923. Asked what caused it, he said:

"She was a married lady and she had a young man there I didn't like the actions of and I told my wife not to go there."

We moved to Hingham because "my wife wanted me to go and I went. That is the only reason I can think of."

Mrs. Garrett went into the milk business, with four or five trucks, two or three teams and about 12 employes, he said. He himself had nothing to do with the business, he declared.

At one time he thought he signed an order for the sale of a dairy apparatus from Wallace Elkerton, and told the salesman:

"If that's what she wants, give it to her. Write out the order and it will save you from going down to Hingham."

SIGNED NOTES

He signed notes jointly with his wife because "she had to have my signature if she wanted to get things on what you might call the installment plan."

MELLON HITS AT BONUS PLAN

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—Secretary Mellon appeared before the Senate finance committee today to warn that cash redemption of the soldiers' bonus would upset the nation's financial structure and "greatly disturb world equilibrium."

He said the cashing of the certificates would "seriously retard a business recovery and so prolong unemployment."

He testified the treasury will close the fiscal year with a deficit, according to present indications, of not less than $375,000,000 and that cash payment of the face value of the certificates would cost about $3,400,000,000.

"Serious as would be the direct consequences to the treasury and to the public credit, the indirect consequences to the country would be even more serious," he said.

"There is no economic merit in the proposal. From the point of view of stimulating business, it is a plan for unmitigated inflation, with the disastrous results of which the world is only too familiar.

"To the unemployed it spells further retardation of the day when normal employment will be avail ble.

"To the taxpayer it means the destruction of all hope of the lightening of the load of taxation for years to come and a probable increase in taxes in the very near future."

Chrysler Insured for $12,000,000

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—The New York American today said Walter P. Chrysler, automobile magnate, had taken out life insurance policies totaling $12,000,000, the largest amount ever issued to an individual.

The policies were issued by five companies within the past month, the American said. Pierre S. Du-Pont, manufacturer, previously headed the list with policies aggregating $7,000,000.

Dip a Day in Icy Sea Will Keep You Fit as Fit Can Be

The way to prevent a cold or to halt one if you feel it coming on has been discovered.

You merely take a dip in the salt water—winter or summer. Says you!

Dr. Adam Cole, an osteopath living at 12 Humphrey st., Swampscott, discovered the secret, which is not likely to become popular.

Every day, winter or summer, rain, hail, sleet—or shine—the doctor dons his bathing suit, lopes across the street to King's Beach —and pow!

And every day he has his gallery of heavy-clad but shivering curious watch him. Until the snow came, two women used to go in every day also, but the snow apparently discouraged them.

The doctor is 47 years old and a bachelor. He says it is wonderful, and he hasn't had a cold all winter.

LEAGUE COURT 'PLOTS' BARED BY LEWIS

Illinois Senator-Elect Declares That All Are "Fighting Against U. S."

Phoenix, Ariz., Jan. 28 (US)—Distrust among members of the League court is rife. They are plotting the destruction of one another. It is absurd to believe that any good can result from an order when these conditions are so markedly evidenced.

In another attack on the League court, J. Hamilton Lewis, United States senator-elect from Illinois, expressed these convictions here before a joint session of the Arizona Legislature.

U. S. IS FRIENDLESS

The senator-elect said that the United States is without a friend in the world, adding:

"They are fighting against us, and it is time for this country to cease lending money to foreign nations."

Then he cited the loans made by the United States during and after the World War on the assumption that it would be used in a fight for democracy and reconstruction purposes.

"Great sums of this money have found their way into the making of armies and navies of foreign powers engaged in building up war machines to a size and standard never equalled in the history of the world.

KEEP MONEY HERE.

"At the beginning of the war the United States had more gold than all the rest of the world combined. What have we now? —nothing.

CITY OFFICIALS AT JOHNSON FUNERAL

Ex-Mayor and Mrs. Nichols Atend the Last Rites for Former City Collector

Many present and former city officials, and a large delegation of Elks, attended funeral services today for George H. Johnson, former city collector, and head of the public celebrations department under Mayor Nichols.

A requiem high mass at Our Lady of Lourdes Church, Brookside ave., Jamaica Plain, was celebrated by Rev. Leo McCabe, who also read the prayers at the grave in Mt. Benedict cemetery.

Among those attending were ex-Mayor and Mrs. Malcolm E. Nichols, Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman, City Councillor James Hein of Brighton, Joseph F. Lyons, Cornelius A. Reardon, secretary to Mayor Curley; John J. Curley, former city treasurer and brother of the Mayor; Robert J. Bottomley, Charles F. Cronin of the Supreme Court, former Traffic Commissioner William Fisher, City Collector William M. McMorrow, Supt. of Public Buildings John P. Englert and Assessors Edward T. Kelly and Henry L. Daly.

Representatives of the Elks included John J. Casidy, Edward C. Carr, John F. Burke, George E. Curran, William J. Casey, Peter McCarron, Dr. E. F. Cronin, Mark Mulvey, J. J. MacDonald; George Reed and former Fire Commissioner Theodore Glynn.

Next, the young Hohenzollern was seen riding in the jubilee procession of his grandmother, Victoria. He was dressed in pure white. His well trained charger was magnificent. His confidence in the whole parade. Now he is an old man, in exile, sawing wood for exercise. He has much of the will power of his ancestor, the great Frederick, and could have been Germany's greatest commercial Emperor. But he kept out of war.

But he lacked Frederick's military genius. You can't interpret that. You mistook the greatness of Bismarck and Von Moltke for Hohenzollern greatness. Now his sun has set and Europe that once watched and feared him makes its plans without considering him. There is the bitterness—to be nothing.

Television, which means "seeing afar," has its real beginning, and in the usual way. Men made tools of bronze to kill each other more easily than with flints, and the iron age came to supply better killing tools. Now bronze and iron are useful, apart from killing. Television is used to flash stock quotations, a whole row of them, to any earthly distance, in a fraction of a second, making the stock ticker an old fashioned as the stage coach. Young Mr. Vincent Astor, catching turtles on the Galapagos Islands, could have on his yacht an instrument that would show him before any Wall Street man could know it that he made a mistake buying sugar stocks.

Later television will be useful, apart from stock speculation. Some Einstein, Moses, Maimonides or Spinoza of the future may be seen and heard by the whole world standing on Mount Ararat, sending out a message of vital importance that nobody but himself will understand.

Gandhi is freed by Britain, after nine months in a comfortable jail, and is said to find freedom oppressive. Leading 320,000,000 Asiatics is not an easy task, when 60,000,000 of them insist on killing the others, and there is no particular place to which they can be led. Drive Britain out of India and millions would die off or be killed off every year, and Gandhi, intelligent and well meaning, knows it.

Uncle Sam shot at a British rum ship, killed the captain and got $500,000 worth of whiskey. Canada wants to know why. Uncle Sam has seized another British ship, the Ruby Castle, killing nobody this time, and seizing $120,000 worth of narcotics. No questions asked about that. But the British may well ask how we expect them to pay their war debts, if we interfere with their most profitable trade.

"Girl from Chatanooga" Goes into the Movies

It was this last that brought her a chance to perform in the talkies.

She left Chattanooga some time ago, dropping temporarily her painting and other arts to try a hand at scenario writing here.

DEATH THREAT BARED IN PROBE OF KILLING ON RUM RUNNER

Heart Attack Causes Auto Crash

MRS. USHER MR. COWING

MRS. DAVID C. USHER, JR., of Southern Artery, Quincy, and J. B. Cowing, of Hancock st., Quincy, who hurried to the rescue of Charles Hicks. Both heard the crash as the auto tore through the fence along the parkway and plunged into the water. They pulled Hicks from the car. (Staff photos.)

GIRL IN MIDDIE PRANK IS BRIDE

Washington, Jan. 28 (INS)—Miss Loretta E. Taylor, who, with Miss Mary Hayden, was smuggled into the mess hall at the U. S. Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md., disguised in midshipmen's uniform, was en route to Dallas, Tex., today on her honeymoon. The bridegroom is Charles W. Boyd, of Dallas.

Lawrence L. Myatt, Wollaston, Mass., and Miller S. Burgin, Jacksonville, Fla., the two midshipmen who gave the girls the uniforms to wear and escorted them into the academy, were dismissed.

Meanwhile efforts are being made in Congress by Senator Walsh (D.), Representative Wigglesworth (R.), both of Massachusetts, to have the two youths reinstated. They called it a "boyish prank" but Secretary of the Navy Adams appeared before the Senate and House committees and objected to such action. He said strict discipline must be enforced at the academy.

The Senate committee has voted in favor of reinstatement while the House committee has not yet voted on the matter. The incident occurred last July. Both girls are of Washington families.

BROTHER OF VICTIM IS ACCUSED

Guardsman Testifies Cluett Predicted Vengeance for Death of Skipper

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—A board of inquiry investigating the shelling of the Canadian rum-runner, Josephine K., by the coast guard Saturday night was informed today that one member of the crew threatened vengeance for the killing of the master, Capt. William P. Cluett, who was slain by a coast guard shell.

The threat, the board was told, came from Alfred Cluett, cook aboard the Josephine K. and brother of the slain.

The testimony came from Bennett Walker, cook of the Coast Guard cutter 161, which arrived at the scene of the shelling in the wake of cutter 145, the boat which made the capture.

QUOTES DEATH THREAT

Walker told the board the threat was made while Capt. Cluett was being taken to a hospital on Staten Island and while the crew of the Josephine K. was herded in the forecastle.

"If our captain dies, your skipper will die, too," he quoted the brother of them fatally wounded captain.

Walker was the first coast guardsman aboard the Josephine K. He was assigned to guard the members of the crew. He was equipped with a revolver, he said, and so far as he could tell there were no firearms aboard the rum-runner.

SCHMIDT SOBER, HE SAYS.

He added to evidence given at yesterday's session seeking to establish that Karl Schmidt, boatswain in command of Cutter 145 and the man who fired the shot that killed Capt. Cluett, was saber.

Members of the board asked Capt. Cecil M. Gabbett, commander of Base 2, Staten Island, to run off a speed test of the Josephine K. as soon as possible.

The speed of the rum runner is an important point in the proceedings, because Gerald Campbell, British consul general in New York, has asked whether it would not have been possible for the cutter to capture the rum ship without resorting to shelling.

Josephine K. Was Owned by Americans, Consul Hears

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—A "suspicion" that the rum runner Josephine K., was American-owned has been communicated to the state department by the American consulate in Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

Department officials said the consulate's report was based on a rumor in Yarmouth that the vessel was owned by the same ring in this country that owned the Canadian registered rum runner, I'm Alone, sunk in March, 1929, in the Gulf of Mexico with loss of life.

HURLEY WOULD CUT WAR DEBTS

Chicago, Jan. 28 (AP)—Edward N. Hurley, who was a member of the World War Foreign Debts Commission, said in an address before the Chicago Association of Commerce today that the 16 debtor nations of the United States should cut their war budgets and this country should simultaneously reduce their war debts.

Hurley, who was wartime chairman of the shipping board, asserted that his plan would reduce unemployment and improve business conditions.

The debtor nations, he added, formerly were the best customers the United States had, and if this country reduced the war debts the same countries would return to American markets for goods, causing a profitable resumption in industry and export markets.

Under Hurley's plan the debt reduction to foreign powers would be conditional on a proportionately yearly reduction of armaments with the United States participating equally. The total reduction over a 30-year period would amount to 50 per cent of the total war debts due the United States, with but a slight tax increase in this country.

Lawyer Debates Religion Tonight; Raps "Hoover's Blindness" and Boston's Censor

An anti-prohibition President and Congress will be elected in 1932, and Congress will end prohibition by the short cut of refusing to appropriate funds to enforce it.

This was the prediction made today by Clarence Darrow, noted Chicago lawyer, here for a debate at Symphony Hall with Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, D. D., on the topic, "Is Religion Necessary?"

Agitation by governors of various states, including Gov. Ely, who in his inaugural address urged memorializing Congress for modification, will help defeat prohibition, Darrow said.

FLAYS "BIGOTED DRYS"

He declared that the Wickersham report showed that prohibition cannot be enforced, and he scored President Hoover for his "blindness to the true condition." He also defended Chicago's reputation and rapped Boston's "old woman censorship."

"Millions of people need money for food, yet the Wickersham commission wants more spent so they can't drink," he said at the Hotel Touraine where he went upon arriving from Albany this morning.

"The Prohibitionists don't care whether they eat or not. They think a man won't go to Heaven if he drinks, and they also think prosperity and other good things we have had were all due to prohibition, while everything unpleasant and bad was due to drink.

"The typical Prohibitionist is so absolutely bigoted that he can't see any good in anything enjoyable, but most people aren't like that, and the tide of liberal sentiment is sweeping the country.

WICKERSHAM AIDED ANTIS

"I think the Wickersham report helped the 'antis' because it showed how hopeless the situation was."

Asked to enumerate what in his opinion were Boston's faults, he shot back:

"You don't want all of them, do you? How much time have you got? Well, there's your food censorship—some old woman, whosoever he is, tells Boston people what they can read.

"There's your Puritanical class, obsessed with the idea they're better than everybody else. They wouldn't even recognize their own ancestors, and the D. A. R. would want to put them in jail. But the Irish and others have leavened these people and Boston is getting better.

Era of Greatest Progress Ahead, Steel Expert Says

New Orleans, Jan. 28 (AP)—The present depression "is just a momentary pause for mental breath-taking before we plunge into a greater era of progressiveness than the world has ever known," said Charles F. Abbott, executive director of the American Institute of Steel Construction, here today.

"Windowless buildings will be in universal use before many years pass," he said. "Lights radiating the health-giving ultra-violet rays will be used to illuminate these structures.

"These things are not dreams," he said in discussing plans for a giant sendrome having an exposed surface of eight acres and equipped with modern hotel service.

RED CROSS HEAD RAPS SENATE

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—Chairman Payne of the Red Cross today blamed the Senate's proposal for a $25,000,000 Red Cross relief fund for failure of his organization to raise $10,000,000 through contribution in less than two weeks.

Testifying before the House appropriations committee on the Senate proposal, Payne said ordinarily the Red Cross could raise $10,000,000 in an emergency drive within 10 days.

CLARA GUARDED FROM THREATS

Los Angeles, Jan. 28 (US)—As a precautionary measure against harm befalling Clara Bow because she praised embezzlement charges against her former secretary, Daisy De Voe, guards today were on duty at the Bow mansion.

Since the conviction of Miss De Voe the film star has received a flood of letters and telegrams from all parts of the country. Most of the messages compliment the actress for prosecuting Daisy and for asking that she be given probation. Some, however, are threatening.

It was the fear that some fanatical letter writer might attempt to injure Miss Bow that caused the hiring of the special guards.

Miss De Voe, whose appeal will be heard Monday in Superior Court, still was a prisoner today in the county jail.

News and Gossip of Society Circles and Current Women's Club Events

Governor and Mrs. Ely at Opera for 'Il Trovatore'

LAST NIGHT'S OPERA, "Il Trovatore," proved to be in even greater favor than the preceding "Lohengrin" — shower upon shower of applause brought the cast before the curtain and another crowded house went away pleased with an excellent performance. Claudia Muzio was very beautiful and sang with freedom of expression. She made a splendid Leonora. Equally fine was Cyrena Van Gordon's singing of the role of Azucena, the gypsy. She took several curtain calls. Richard Bonelli as the Count charmed the audience with his voice and the other masculine lead, Manrico, played by Charles Marshall, rounded out the excellent cast.

BOSTON OPERA FANS were unusually enthusiastic in applause and comment—it appears to be the season for opera and young and old waiting for it. Now that the debutante balls and parties are almost over, this is a welcome change in the social program. Governor and Mrs. Joseph Ely made their first public social appearance with the governor's staff and they made a very colorful and handsome box party with their smart uniforms. Mrs. Ely was gracious in ivory satin with black velvet wrap trimmed with white fox and her guest, Mrs. H. S. Spencer, wife of Col. Spencer, wore a rose and gold lame cloak.

MRS. HAROLD JEFFERSON COOLIDGE, who sat in the orchestra, instead of occupying her box, wore a smart gown of unique blue; the new bride and bridegroom, Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Pickman, Jr., appeared in the foyer, Mrs. Pickman, who was Mrs. Lynde Cochran wearing black satin with scarlet wrap trimmed with silver fox. Mrs. James Newell looked charming in embroidered wrap and her lovely daughter Miss Alice, were the fashionable white. Mrs. F. L. Higginson, Jr., and Miss Anne Clifford in pastel satins with fur wraps arrived together and Mrs. Thomas S. Woods, Jr., wore a magnificent Chinese mandarin coat over her delicate gown.

A HANDSOME COUPLE WERE Mrs. A. H. Smith in plum colored velvet and Miss Elizabeth W. Smith in black and silver. Miss Dorothy Lawrence was escorted by Robert Hallowell, Jr., and was effective in black gown with white fur-trimmed wrap. Anne and Helen Warren attended again last evening. Miss Anne in rose lame and Miss Helen in beige lace. Eleanor Gibson a quaint necklace set off her black taffeta and Miss Elizabeth Mason and Dorothy Porter in sun met ermine evening coats looked like twins.

MRS. H. WENDALL ENDICOTT was smartly gowned in the newest mode of flowered crepe—plain colors will soon be a fashion note of the past season. Mrs. Ralph Flanders and her beautiful daughter, Mrs. Flanders Huntoon, were also present for the second night of Boston's opera. Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, always magnificently gowned, wore white crepe with beaded applique, and the Misses Helen and May Burnham of Commonwealth ave., in lovely evening wraps, graced the occasion.

Infants' Hospital Night Draws Many to Plymouth Benefit

"TOPAZE," THE PLAY given Infants' Hospital night at the Plymouth, rivalled the opera in magnificence and attendance last evening. The subscribers were out in numbers and the play was pleasing. Sylvia Weld, who has recently returned from Palm Beach, was there with her sister, Miss Eloise, and we saw Evelyn Royce and Sally Sprague and Joan Tuckerman. Mrs. Samuel Warren occupied her box and Mrs. Robert H. S. Hinds, who has recently come from India for an important event, also attended. Mrs. Hinds is the daughter of Mrs. Boylston Beal. Others attending were the Walter Hunnewells, the Robert Brewers and their daughter, Miss Elsa, the George Putnams, Arthur Beales, Arthur Winslows and their daughter, Miss Sarah, the Dick Lawrences and Mr. and Mrs. George Scott Winslow.

BEACON HILL WAS WELL represented with the Robert Livermores, Thomas Blumers and the Archibald Blanchards. Among the Back Bay folk were Mr. and Mrs. William Endicott, Mr. and Mrs. William Amory, the F. I. Amorys and the Alexander Grants. Francis Appleton and Mrs. Appleton were there and Mr. and Mrs. Philip Stockton, Mrs. John Hall, Mrs. Marshall Fabiens and the Henry Bohlens. Barbara Bremer came with her cousin, Theodore Bremer, Jr., and Miss Dorothea Newman was with her mother, Mrs. Frederick Eaton. Mr. and Mrs. John Homans and Mr. and Mrs. Richard Olney also were present. This is the fourth in the series. There will be one more this season.

Mrs. Grafton Smith and Miss Goodwin in Wedding Party

MRS. GRAFTON SMITH OF Hamilton will be Miss Betty Barrel's matron of honor, and Miss Frances Goodwin, a sister, will be maid of honor at her marriage in Aiken in March to Joseph Woods.

THERE IS RUMOR ABOUT that Mrs. Marie Lee Frothingham of Beverly Farms, who divorced Oliver Turner and later Huntington Frothingham, will be married to Gordon Means of Boston, who married Marjorie Rice and later Constance Gardiner, both of whom obtained legal separation.

MISS MOLLY WOLCOTT, daughter of Mrs. Robert Wolcott, came down from Vassar for a surprise party for her brother, Robert, Jr., whose birthday was Saturday. Miss Wolcott is a popular Vincent Club member and has studied in Paris. She returns to college today.

Mrs. Poole will sail for South America, July 3, for a trip including in its itinerary visits to Havana, Panama Canal, Peru, Bolivia, the Andes, Buenos Aires, Montevideo and Brazil.

Secretary of State Cook to Be Speaker on Federation Hour

Frederick W. Cook, secretary of the Commonwealth, will be presented by Mrs. Nathaniel E. Smith, seventh district director, as the guest speaker of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs broadcast Thursday, Feb. 5, from station WEZA at 1:30 p. m. This announcement is made by the radio director of the federation, Mrs. Leon E. White.

"Was Our Tercentenary Worth While," is to be the subject of the state official's radio talk.

An air message to non-clubwomen, "Echoes From Hollywood," showing what clubwomen are doing to raise the standard of films, will be given 10 minutes later by Mrs. Oscar A. Filaidelfi, chairman of motion picture advisers of the federation.

Mass. Civic League to Discuss Pending Bills at Luncheon

Whether or not the school-leaving age should be raised will be discussed next Tuesday when the Massachusetts Civic League sponsors another of its legislative luncheon-meetings at the Twentieth Century Club, 3 Joy st., at 12:30 p. m.

As chairman of the session, Miss Susan M. Lee will introduce speakers who will present arguments on these three sides of the question: first, do all children over 14 years of age need school; secondly, what alternatives to school do Massachusetts stores and industries offer; thirdly, would half time school help solve the problem. The speakers,

Youth and all its problems will again serve as the topic of discussion for hundreds of Bay State clubwomen.

The division of the American Home of the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, will this year conduct its Youth Conference at the Hotel Statler, March 11 and 12, with prominent authorities and speakers as guests.

The feature of the opening day will be the luncheon address of Prof. David D. Vaughan, professor of social ethics at Boston University on "Youth and the New Age." Recognized as a fearless and staunch supporter of modern youth, Dr. Vaughan has always championed their cause.

LECTURES ON PROGRAM

On the program of the first session are lectures on "Current Events in Home Making" by Mrs. Carley Fogg, director of the Cambridge Home Information Center; "Vocational Guidance" by Richard Allen of the department of research and guidance of the public schools of Providence, R. I.; "Constructive Play" by Miss Marjorie Slaght of the Garland School for Home Making; "The Adolescent" by John B. Scully, superintendent of schools of Brockton; "What Old England Has to Teach Young America About Home Life" by Mrs. Hugh D. Butler, an American woman home from an eight-year stay in England; and "The Religion of the New Generation" by Seth Rogers Brooks, minister of the First Universalist Church of Malden.

DR. STAFFORD TO SPEAK

Dr. Russell Henry Stafford, minister of the New Old South Church, will be the luncheon and principal speaker of the second of the two-day conference. His subject will be "Our Children in a Perplexing World."

Preceding him on the lecture platform will be Donald Smith Feeley, household stylist and economist who will discuss, "Good Taste in Home Decoration"; Dr. Helen I. D. McGillicuddy of the Massachusetts Society of Social Hygiene on "Social Hygiene"; Dr. Anna M. Skinner, psychiatrist at the Judge Baker Foundation on "Maternal Hygiene and Our Children", and Miss Helen D. Leavitt, lecturer on music appreciation at Boston University on "Adventures in Music."

Mrs. Lauren L. McMaster, chairman of the American home department for the Massachusetts State Federation of Women's Clubs, and her committee have arranged the program. At its head, Mrs. McMaster will preside and introduce the speakers.

DUCE AWAITS APOLOGY BY GEN. BUTLER

Washington, Jan. 28 (AP)—Two capitals today awaited for a fighter and orator, Maj.-Gen. Smedley D. Butler of the Marines, to explain a recent speech in Philadelphia.

Washington wanted it to give the explanation to Rome and if remarks attributed to the Marine officer are true, Rome wants an apology.

ITALIANS PROTEST.

Butler was quoted as saying that Premier Mussolini remarked after h motor car ran over a child:

"What is one life in the affairs of a state?"

A formal protest was made to the State Department yesterday by the Italian ambassador, Giacomo De Martino. It was not the first speech that Butler has been asked to explain.

In Pittsburgh in 1929 he was quoted as saying of the activities of the Marines during Nicaraguan elections:

"The opposition candidates became bandits when it became necessary to elect our man to office."

He was closeted with Secretary Adams about this and later the Secretary said he was convinced Butler's remarks had been misrepresented. That ended the matter.

ATTACKED VOLSTEAD ACT

At Oakland, Cal., he was quoted as saying the "fool Volstead Act," was supportd only to "keep liquor away from persons without influence."

He had been director of public safety in Philadelphia shortly before. His stay was turbulent and exciting and he fought the liquor traffic as vigorously as he ever did bandits in Haiti or China.

The Law Enforcement League of Philadelphia was about to put up a tablet to him when they heard about the Oakland speech and asked for an explanation.

"I don't care whether you put up the monument or not," the general wrote back. "I guess it would be better not to do so, as I intend to be myself the rest of my life and not have strings tied to me by anybody, or be put in a position where I constantly have to keep earning my own epitaph."

GANGS PLAN TO HONOR GUIFFRE

While the body of Carmello Guiffre, gangster victim of an assassin's bullet, lies on a slab in the Northern Mortuary today, preparations are under way in the North End for Gangland's final gesture to the slain—an elaborate funeral.

Reports are current that the rites for the newest victim of Boston's gang vengeance will surpass any held in the North End in recent years. Police expect the funeral to rival even those held by members of New York and Chicago gangs.

Although the dead gang leader's body will not be surrendered until late today or tonight, crowds are already thronging Guiffre's home in Charter st. Florist shops in the vicinity report record orders for funeral offerings.

Little Power Value in Lightning Bolts

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—The most powerful stroke of wild lightning ever measured by man would run New York city's power lines only half a second. This stroke, 5,000,000 volts, was caught on an Arkansas electric line and its measurements in watts and amperes were reported today to the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

$500,000 Distillery Seized in N. Y. Raid

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—A distillery valued at more than $500,000, the largest seized in New York state since the advent of prohibition, was seized last night in Kingston, N. Y., by federal prohibition agents. Four men were arrested.

To End a Cough In a Hurry, Mix This at Home

To end a stubborn cough quickly, it is important to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes, get rid of the germs and also aid the system inwardly to help throw off the trouble.

For these purposes, here is a home-made medicine, far better than anything you could buy at 3 times the cost. From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex. Pour this into a pint bottle, and add plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey to fill up the pint. This takes but a moment, and makes a remedy so effective that you will never do without, once you have used it. Keeps perfectly, and children like it.

This simple remedy does three necessary things. First, it loosens the germ-laden phlegm. Second, it soothes away the inflammation. Third, it is absorbed into the blood, where it acts directly on the bronchial tubes. This explains why it brings such quick relief, even in the obstinate bronchial coughs which follow cold epidemics.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form, and known as one of the greatest healing agents for severe coughs, chest colds and bronchial troubles.

Frocks Feel New Trend Influence

By ANN ARDEN

MODEL, from F. P. O'CONNOR CO.—American Staff Photo

RUSSIA MAY be in bad repute politically, but certainly not fashionably! The most widespread Russian propaganda of the moment need never stir the alarmists—only the chic! It is a delightful propaganda, you will have discovered by now. It advocates tunics and peplums, vivid colors and embroideries, just the sort of fashion vivacity that is needed in the late winter wardrobe.

* * *

IN FROCKS, the Russian revival has done some very nice things. It has brought back the tunic, always a flattering gesture for both matronly and modern figures.

* * *

IN THE great days of Russia, the wardrobes of noble ladies were noted for the richness of fabric, and superlative beauty of furs and intricate embroideries. Contrast of color and fabric animate the slim silhouette.

* * *

THE TWO-PIECE costume pictured has a skirt of black wool crepe, and deep inverted box pleats center front. The tunic blouse of decidedly Russian inspiration, is in bright red thin wool, intricately embroidered in bright colors—yellow, green, orange, and black. The belt is of the skirt material, and the square neck, and side button closing are outlined in black.

* * *

* * *

THE TUCK-IN blouse and sweater have influenced the one-piece frock in more ways than one. The one-piece dress wouldn't consider placing its belt at any other than the natural waistline since the tuck-in's advent and since the light colored top combined with dark skirt has definitely become a fashion. Touches of the darker fabric usually trim the cuff and sometimes appear in diagonal appliques on the waist.

* * *

IN THIS weary stretch between Christmas and the first warm days of spring, the drab landscape just shrieks for color—the redder the better. And you have no idea what a rosy glow a scarlet frock or tunic can impart to a mere afternoon of bridge.

WIFE TELLS OF HUSBAND'S BEAUTY LIST

Mrs. Gertrude Gross, suing for divorce in Salem court, yesterday testified that her husband, Solomon Gross, had a "beauty list" of attractive Lynn girls, willing to entertain out-of-town buyers and stimulate trade for his radio business.

Mrs. Gross, who charges cruelty and infidelity, is the daughter of a late millionaire Swampscott realtor.

Mrs. Gross, in her fourth day of cross-examination, said she went with her father, the late Harry Goodman, to interview William Sullivan, wealthy Lynn shoe manufacturer, and ask his aid in obtaining a divorce.

Mrs. Gross said Sullivan told her that her husband had a list of "beautiful girls" who would be willing to entertain out-of-town buyers. Sullivan told her, Mrs. Gross testified, that he knew the names of some of the girls and knew where they lived.

Sullivan also told her, Mrs. Gross said, that her husband was unduly friendly with the pretty proprietor of a Lynn beauty shop.

Mrs. Gross, who names Mrs. Katherine Perkins of Lynn as the woman who wrecked her home, told of securing affidavits from two sisters in Gloucester, hostesses at a Gloucester inn, who declared Gross had dined there on several occasions with Mrs. Perkins.

One of the sisters, Miss Florence McEachern, came to Lynn at her invitation, Mrs. Gross said, and went to the home of Mrs. Perkins, posing as a canvasser, to make sure of the identification.

Soviets Plan Huge Asbestos Output

London, Jan. 28 (AP)—Walter Rukeyser, an American who has worked for months as engineer for the Russian asbestos trust in the Urals, arrived here today.

He is engaged in a program which would bring the Russian asbestos output to 250,000 tons a year, almost the present production of the entire world.

America Radio Leader

St. Louis, Jan. 28 (AP)—America now leads all nations in radio development, taking the place occupied by Great Britain before the World War, Gen. James G. Harbord said in an address here today.

LAST RITES ARE HELD FOR REV. J. T. O'BRIEN

With scores of town officials representatives of the police and fire departments and hundreds of friends present, the funeral of Rev. Fr. John T. O'Brien was held this morning in St. John the Evangelist Church, Winthrop.

Among the notables present was Mayor James M. Curley of Boston.

Fr. O'Brien, who died Sunday after a short illness, was pastor of St. John's for many years.

The solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. Fr. Timothy J. Holland, P. P., of the Immaculate Conception Church. Rev. John H. Ryan, P. P., of St. Bridget's Church, Abington, was deacon, and Rev. Edward U. Conroy, chaplain at Deer Island, subdeacon.

MGR. HABERLIN PRESENT

The Rev. Thomas Markham of Haverhill acted as master of ceremonies; the Rev. Charles McGuinness of St. John's Seminary, Brighton, thurifer. Acolytes were the Rev. Patrick Dawson of Lowell and the Rev. Thomas Frawley of Peabody.

The archdiocese was represented by Mgr. Richard J. Haberlin, vicar-general of the archdiocese. The entire mass was sung by the priests' choir, led by the Rev. Walter Lambert of the Gate of Heaven Church, South Boston.

BURIED AT PLYMOUTH

Pallbearers were Rep. John P. Clancy, Judge Charles J. Brown, ex-Selectman Timothy J. Mahoney, Henry J. Barry, Timothy Quinn, John Lill, Mathew Sheehan, Frederick Hogan, Edward Sullivan, James H. Crowley, Timothy F. Sullivan and Grand Knight William P. Walpole, Winthrop Council, K. C.

The funeral cortege was led by an escort of motorcycle police to the East Boston line, where it was met by a detail of Boston motorcycle officers.

Interment will be in St. Joseph's cemetery, Plymouth, where Fr. O'Brien was born. He was the first priest to be ordained from Plymouth.

London Balks at Ban on Sunday Movies

London, Jan. 28 (AP)—Despite the decision of the court of appeals that Sunday movies were illegal under an 18th century statute, London's film fans will continue to enjoy Sunday talkies and other screen entertainment for the present, it appeared today.

Mrs. McAdams to Be Bride Tomorrow of British Officer

Lowell, Jan. 28—A romance between Mrs. Marjorie MacAdams, prominent young society widow of this city, and Lieut. John Egerton Harrison of the famous British Grenadier Guards, will culminate tomorrow in marriage.

Although every effort has been made to keep the ceremony a secret, it was learned it will take place at All Souls' Church at 12:30, with the Rev. Simeon Cozad, the pastor, officiating, assisted by Rev. Dr. Henry F. Zwicker of Grace Church, Lockport, N. Y.

Only close friends of the families will attend the ceremony and the reception to follow.

The reception will be held at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elbert James Gilmore of 52 Clark rd.

A few days later, the bride and couple will leave for a honeymoon trip to Florida, and in the spring will sail for England so that Lieut. Harrison may resume his duties with the Guards.

Mrs. MacAdams is a widow whose husband died some time ago. She is a graduate of Lasell Seminary and Syracuse University, and is popular with the younger social set of Lowell. Her father is a well known merchant.

Lieut. Harrison is the younger son of the late Herbert C. Harrison of London, Eng., whose family are now residents of Lockport, N. Y.

Sore THROAT

The daily press tells of increasing numbers of cases of sore throat. A sore throat is a menace to the person who has it, and to those around him. Don't neglect the condition. Check the soreness and the infection with Bayer Aspirin! Crush three tablets in ½ tumblerful of water and gargle well. You can feel the immediate relief. The soreness will be relieved at once. The infection will be reduced. Take Bayer tablets for your cold; and for relieving the aches and pains common to colds. Bayer Aspirin brings quick comfort in neuralgia, neuritis, rheumatism, etc. Get the genuine, with the Bayer cross on each tablet:

It Was Real Rye, But They Got Only an Eyeful

Washington, Wickersham and all other thoughts of prohibition were cast aside for more of the jocular strain, but it was a legitimate shipment to a Boston warehouse.

Express officials said the shipment was taken on at New York for distribution here among authorized druggists and doctors on permit.

But it looked good to many who came from the suburbs.

George D. Soule Dies

Whitman, Jan. 28—George D. Soule, president of the Whitman Co-operative Bank, died in Brocton Hospital early today. He became ill about a week ago at Lake Worth, Fla.

Smoke Is Branded Man's Worst Foe

Pittsburgh, Jan. 28 (AP)—Engineers were told today that smoke in time's chief ally in levelling man and his creations to dust. To smoke may be laid fogs that rob humanity of the sun's health-giving ultra-violet rays; the acids that gnaw at structures of iron and steel and damage the tissues of the body, inducing sickness, and even death.

The indictment was presented to the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers by H. B. Meller, chief of Pittsburgh bureau of smoke regulation.

Leading Hospitals make it a point to specify Kotex

WHY do you suppose our outstanding hospitals, staffed by world-famous surgeons, make it a point to specify Kotex? There's more than one reason!

In the first place, it is hygienically safe. In the second place, it is amazingly absorbent—and that is vital for all surgical purposes. Actually—think of this—Kotex is five times as absorbent as the finest surgical cotton! Each one of its delicate layers is a quick, complete absorbent in itself.

Adjustable—that's important

These layers of Cellucotton (not cotton) absorbent wadding can be removed, readjusted to individual needs. That makes a lot of difference not only to hospitals but to you.

Because it is so absorbent and because it absorbs scientifically (not just in one concentrated area, but all over) Kotex naturally stays soft. Another thing—it can be worn on either side with equal protection—both sides are absorbent.

Hospitals need the best. So do you. Safety, security, good health demand it. Why should you be content with anything else when you can buy Kotex everywhere? —at all drug, dry goods and department stores.

You ask for it by name. Simply specify Kotex.

Kotex Company, Chicago.

KOTEX IS SOFT...

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

See the new Kotex Belt

Brings new ideals of sanitary comfort! Wears to fit, by an entirely new patented process. Firm yet light; still not curl; perfect-fitting.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

THERE SEEMS to be a good deal more to this marriage business than holding hands. In "It's a Wise Child" at the Tremont, the author has mixed humor with philosophy, damaged a few reputations and exalted a few more. No matter how you may have viewed the philosophies, and they were inconsequential, there was no escaping the riot Laurence E. Johnson raised with the humors of his play.

• • •

SOMEWHERE in this trembling world of the theater there may be more fun packed into one small comedy, but I doubt it. Certainly the present season's stock in trade has not matched "It's a Wise Child" in any of the items which the dramatist always expects and the producer hopes will tip an audience out of its seats. Contented playgoers responded nobly last night; merrily they followed the romance of Joyce Stanton and the affairs of her wrangling household. An ingenious girl, Joyce, and full of useful expedients with which to rid herself of unwelcome, pestering lovers.

Nicholas Young

• • •

THE SHAMELESS confession that she was about to become an unexpected mother, promptly scratched two scandal-mongers from the field. Upon which the play settled down to the business of dragging out the maximum possible. Outraged relatives stormed, the family argued, and even the ice man was drawn into the situation. There seemed to be an epidemic of prospective babies, for a kitchen maid was at the moment in similar predicament, which explained the ice man.

• • •

TACTFULLY the author led his characters through a maze of startling climaxes; many topics were intimate subjects discussed, rehashed and then left dangling in midair. Like a rolling sea, laughter swept through the audiences—deluged it. And at the end you were reminded that an artful maid is more than a match for any man, for the whole mad story was just a ruse to suppress the unworthy and capture the right man.

• • •

SMALL TOWN characters ruled the story and they were played with fine spirit. There were many of them—too many to appraise in detail. Of the highlights in the performances Leila Bennett, as the maid, was fresh fuel for fun at every entrance; Harlan Briggs and Porter Hall were contrasting types of up-state business men, vain and humorless in themselves, but irresistibly funny to the spectator. Minor Watson played the family lawyer like a big brother, while Mildred McCoy, charming and fair, was the clever girl with a bright idea. Helen Lowell, Olga Krolow, George Walcott, and Joseph Striker brought out splendid characterizations. This leads you to the ice man, Sidney Toler, of whom many fine things may be mentioned and without whom "It's a Wise Child" would have missed some of its brightest moments.

BENNY MEROFF ON MET BILL

Benny Meroff

Benny Meroff, direct from five consecutive years and 7000 performances in Chicago, comes to the Metropolitan tomorrow for an indefinite stay. Meroff, billed as "the cyclone of versatility," plays every instrument in the band, sings, dances, and jungles. His official trademark is "I've Got Rhythm." He is said to dominate the stage. He is truly a "One-Man Show," doing much more than the usual master of ceremonies.

WILLIAM POWELL DETECTIVE AGAIN IN NEW FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor for Universal Service
Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 28—Dashiel Hammett has permanently parked his typewriter on the First National Lot. "The Maltese Falcon" did the trick. Jack Warner who is out apparently to sign all the likely stars and writers and Darryl Zanuck, who bought "The Maltese Falcon," have signed this writer of thrillers, on a long term contract.

His first will be "The Private Detective." It is an expose of the unscrupulous methods employed by private detective agencies. Mr. Hammett knows something of the work reputable detective agencies do and can't it the Louella O. Parsons irony of fate that Bill Powell will be the man to put a stop to it, playing Philo Vance for Paramount should have for his first vehicle at First National another detective role?

LEWIS STONE has been added to the cast of "Always Goodbye" at Fox. That's the picture which William Cameron Menzies and Kenneth MacKenna are directing jointly. What with Stone married only a few months and MacKenna recently wed to Kay Francis, it looks like a bridegrooms' convention. That delightful actor, J. M. Kerrigan, will also lend his talents to "Always Goodbye." The new Fox impersonation, Elissa Landi, who is the subject of much comment in Hollywood, has the feminine lead.

GREEK STAR IN 'ELEKTRA'

By HARRIS MORGAN

MME. MARIKA COTOPOULI and her capable company, hailing from the home of the Parthenon and the other heirlooms of the "glory that was Greece," enacted a classic of the classics, last night, in Symphony Hall. The drama was that great tragic tale the Greeks liked to do; the version used by Mme. Cotopouli was the work by Sophocles.

The language used by the star and her company was Romaic or Modern Greek; but such was the power of the pantomime of Mme. Cotopouli and her cast that those who did not understand the words, caught the spirit of the plot, and were profoundly moved by the genius of the majestic pen of Sophocles. It should be explained that Mme. Cotopouli chose to make use of the original as treated by Hugo von Hofmannsthal, an English version of whose condensation was performed by Mrs. Pat Campbell and company in 1908.

Mme. Cotopouli rightly has the admiration of her whole race; for she is an actress of first rank. Her appearance was a triumphant one.

"TROVATORE" PRINCIPALS TRIUMPH

By MOSES SMITH

Although the performance of Verdi's "Il Trovatore," on the second evening of the season of the Chicago Opera Company at the Boston Opera House, did not attract the capacity audience of the opening night, there was still no large a crowd as to surprise most seasoned patrons of music. Apparently the change last week from "The Jewels of the Madonna" to the perennial favorite of Verdi did no great harm from the box-office point of view, and perhaps it did a great deal of good.

It even did good from an artistic standpoint. For, coming to hear "Trovatore" prejudiced against it we could not be in the Opera House without realizing that Verdi has here written many pages of beautiful melody, and has shown many hints of the genius for dramatic writing.

• • •

MUCH OF THIS impression was due, as well, to the well-coordinated production of the opera last night. The stage direction had been insistent, apparently, that singers must not only sing but take part, as well, in a drama.

The change in bill was worth while, moreover, in giving us an added opportunity to hear in an exquisite singing of Mme. Claudia Muzio in a role of Leonora. Her voice was already dramatic in heroic mould and expressive of the most tender sentiments. Her portrayal was always in character, and her acting as genuine as one is likely to encounter in grand opera.

• • •

MME. MUZIO shared principal honors, and the overwhelming plaudits of the audience, with Cyrena Van Gordon, a notable Azucena. In this part she was heard and seen at her best. Her voice was as flexible an instrument for conveying beauty of tone and shading of expression as it has ever been within our recollection.

Richard Bonelli, as the Count of Luna, was not far behind. On occasion he had to strain his comparatively light voice to its very limits in order to convey the full purport of the music, but for the most part his tones were round, full and of beautiful quality. We can write with considerably less enthusiasm of the other male principal, Charles Marshall, the Manrico, who did little to alter our previous impression that his principal asset is an ability to emit (and hold) a great big, high C.

MARSHAL FOCH'S WAR MEMOIRS

through the Ile de France, Picardy, Artois and Flanders, up to the North Sea. In this way, the sea marked the end of the maneuver though it had never been its aim.

All along the road traversed the efforts of each to outflank the other had ended in combats of front against front, bringing no decisive result. When finally the sea put an end to further progress, there ensued the Battle of Ypres. Here both sides sought a decision in a supreme effort to break through hastily improvised defences.

After a race lasting a full month, the Allied forces which had shattered the enemy's invasion at the Marne again checked his march on the banks of the Yser, and by saving the Channel ports strengthened the coalition and consolidated the Franco-British union. If they failed to overthrow the German Army in a decisive victory, they at least demolished all its plans by closing in its face the last door by which it could win . . .

Must Have Plan
Marne Victory Proves Theory Correct

Great wars, especially those in which several Allied nations are engaged, as well as the important battles they involve, cannot be considered merely from the viewpoint of each of the groups of forces participating. They constitute a whole, a combination of joint actions, which, although extending over large spaces and long periods of time, must necessarily be harmonized, if a favorable result is finally to be attained.

Even if one of these actions should come to a standstill or one group of forces be particularly tried, the commander of the whole must unflinchingly stand by his general plan, at the same time stimulating or sustaining the failing action, but without ever admitting that it can be wholly renounced or that its weakness can cause the relinquishment or even any change in that plan.

Losses suffered at any given moment by a group of forces even so great as an army cannot justify any such disturbance in the combined operations of the other armies, or in actions being pursued for the defense of the Allied interests as a whole.

The moral to be drawn from this idea—and it is applicable to all degrees in the hierarchy of command—is that the more anxious and disquieting the situation of his own troops may be, and the more critical the moment then facing him appears, the more urgent it is for any commander to push forward with unshaken energy his share in the general operations.

He must not let himself be influenced by the uncertainties and dangers of his own particular situation; this will always be restored by a general success. On the contrary, it is his duty to search his mind and call upon his imagination for means which will enable his troops to hold out until the crisis is over.

In my opinion, the victory of the Marne had fully justified this doctrine; the moment had come to apply it once more . . .

On October 8, after establishing his headquarters at Abbeville, Field Marshal French came to see me at Doullens. It was the first time I had met him since the beginning of the campaign. I was especially glad to see him once more. We had known each other for a long time, and the cordial reception he had always given me in former years, both in France and in England, left no doubt in my mind as to the frankness which would mark our relations, now that we were both engaged in a great war.

Full of Confidence
Foch Not Alarmed at Allied Status

Among other news he brought was that of the capitulation of Antwerp. To his question as to what we could do to counter an event which had made the Germans master of all Belgium, I replied that we were still far from having effected junction with the Belgian army, and that our troops were a long way from the coast of the North Sea.

To my mind the question was whether we would arrive in time to achieve this two-fold object. All that could be said at the present moment was that every effort must be directed to attaining it; supposing that, meantime, we did not succeed in turning the enemy's northern wing.

My old friend, Sir Henry Wilson (subsequently to become a field marshal himself), was with Sir John French. I told him, with a certain amount of emotion, the happiness I felt at seeing him again, and I added that I was convinced that the rapid and effective entry of the British army into the war was due to the preparatory measures which he, as head of the British General Staff, had made for that contingency.

General Wilson had already given evidence of possessing those qualities of patriotic vigilance and farsighted intelligence which his later career was to brilliantly confirm.

For my part I did not find the general situation bad, and I was full of confidence. I had seen the enemy fail in Lorraine, and we had beaten him on the Marne. He was now attempting to restore his fortunes in the north, but we were holding our own.

The lightning stroke by which he expected to encompass France's destruction had been parried in victorious fashion, and Russia's weight could not be long now in making itself felt.

Attack Planned
Foch Prepares to Strike Again

Furthermore, the results already obtained by our second and tenth armies, and the imminent entry of the British forces into action, justified the hope that we would be able to make our maneuver to the north. Accordingly, on October 10, I wrote to the commander-in-chief as follows:

"GENERAL:

"I consider our situation very satisfactory. Castelnau is not budging nor, barring some incidents, are his territorials. Maud'Huy is attacking around Arras. His success is slow but continued. Further north, our cavalry has just been driven back on to the line La Bassee-Bethune, but I do not attach great importance to that, because:

"At mid-day today the British Second Corps will be at Bethune and Lillers and the British Cavalry Corps at Aire and Guarbecque. More British are detraining today at and in the neighborhood of St. Omer (which we hold); under these conditions, there seems little to fear from a German attack.

"The Second Army is recovering its confidence. Duchesne's arrival will have an excellent effect. There is no more talk of a retreat, which, in any case, I have expressly forbidden. The cavalry has not yet sufficient audacity.

"I will return to Romilly whenever you desire, but I think that I am needed here, inasmuch as our forces are still not lined up, the advance has not yet been resumed and we have to consider a very extended territory, stretching as it does from Dunkirk through Lille to Noyon, and many incidents are possible.

"Please receive, General, the assurance of my respectful devotion.

(Signed) "FOCH.

"P. S.—If you approve and if Marshal French agrees, I propose to advance our left Tenth Army by Lille to the Scheldt at Tournai or at Orchies, the British Army moving in the direction of Lille and to the north of that town, and forming line from Tournai, through Courtrai. In this way all the French, British and Belgian detachments would be united on the left banks of either the Scheldt or the Lys. After that we can see."

Since Marshal French expected to have on October 10 one corps (the Second) and two cavalry divisions ready to come into action, between Bethune and Aire, and on October 12 the Third Corps and two cavalry divisions, between Bethune and St. Omer, we made dispositions on the 10th for resuming the attack and clearing up the situation as soon as possible. These arrangements were set down in the following note:

"In the existing situation of the Allies armies, the first thing to be done is, while acting with every precaution, to effect the union of the Belgian, British and French forces which, as a result of recent events, have become scattered.

"The area north and east of Lille, between the Scheldt and the Lys, seems to afford favorable ground for this operation.

"If tomorrow, the 11th, and the day after the 12th, the left of the French Tenth Army is supported by the British Army (Second Corps and Cavalry Corps) operating on the front Bethune-Merville, it is anticipated that the road to Lille will be cleared.

"On the other hand, the area north of the line Merville-Hazebrouck-Cassel (which we hold) appears to be occupied only by weak forces.

"Under these conditions, it is believed that on the morning of the 13th the left of the French Army could march toward Lille and, later on, toward Tournai, the right of the British Army toward the area north of Lille, and later on toward Templeneuve, and the center of the British Army on Courtrai.

"With the Scheldt thus held at Tournai and the Lys held at Courtrai, the British, French and Belgian forces could be assembled behind these rivers.

"If the Field Marshal Commander-in-Chief of the British Army is in agreement with these views, the French Army would be allotted for its movements the road Ostreville-Houdain-Verquigneul-La Bassee-Lille-Tournai and the roads to the south; the British Army would use all roads to the north of these.

"I have the honor to ask if the above is approved.

(Signed) "FOCH."

Sir John French undertook to support the operations of the French troops as fully and as promptly as possible. Owing, however, to delays in detraining the first division of the British Third Corps was not available till the afternoon of the 13th, and was not ready to move as a whole before the evening of the 15th.

Saving Belgium
Blocking the German March to Calais

In the meanwhile the second army held fast to its positions, but the northern wing of the tenth army and the leading troops of the British Army found their advance in the direction of Lille held up by repeated attacks which the enemy was developing in ever-increasing strength south of the Lys.

The arrival on the 15th of the British forces and their advance on the northern shore of the Lys marked our start in outflanking and enveloping the northern wing of the German armies operating in France. But a fresh storm was about to break.

The hostile forces that had been operating in Belgium, having been freed by the surrender of Antwerp, were now moving to this same northern banks of the Lys. A new channel had been opened for the invasion we had managed to dam in Picardy, in Artois and in French Flanders, and which we were trying to encircle on the Lys, from Armentieres to Menin.

A new theater of operations—Belgium—henceforth had to be considered, and steps must be immediately taken to meet a military situation which revived the menace to the Channel ports and the liaison between the Allies.

It was now a question of blocking the march "nach Calais" and of saving at least a portion of Belgium, whose very existence was threatened. Where could we effect that junction of the scattered Allied forces which was forecast in the note of October 10? The Lys and the Scheldt could no longer cover it.

What was the real fighting value of these forces? To what extent could their co-operation be counted upon? Behind what barrier could they be united so as to form at least an obstacle to the enemy's advance?

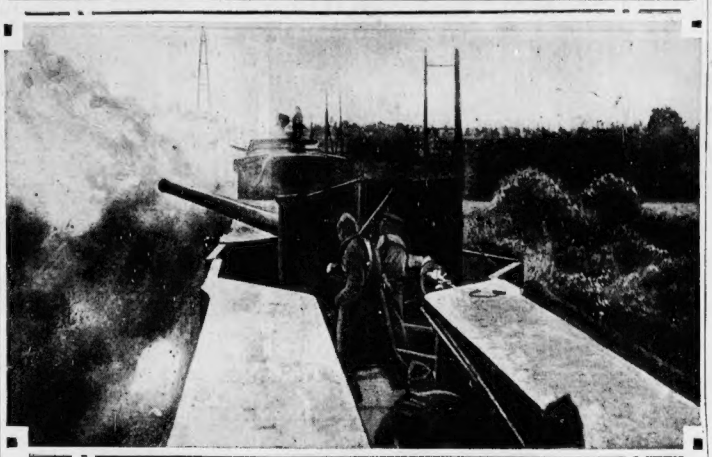
In tomorrow's instalment in the Boston Evening American, Marshal Foch tells how preparations were made to meet the crisis in Flanders.

British Guns Hammering Away at German Army



MESSAGES OF DEATH. As the German armies rolled across Belgium and into northern France, the British government swung mounted naval guns into action in an effort to check the rapid moves of the invading host. This picture shows some of the British naval guns in action in Flanders during the fall of 1914. It was the work of these guns that precipitated a series of desperate engagements with the advancing German armies after the first Battle of the Marne.

FANNING with GEORGE UNDERWOOD

IT LOOKS AS IF O. HENRY WAS RIGHT

HERR MAX SCHMELING, figuratively chased from his beloved Unter den Linden and the beer stubes of Freiderich Strasse by countrymen who refused to be buncoed, stepped ashore in New York, yesterday, into half a million good American dollars. Billy McCarney, the old Carpet-Bagger of Pugilism, has greased up the old circus wagon for a cross-country junketing trip which will net the Schmeling entourage a fortune and the Teuton Schlager will get another fortune for his bout with Young Stribling.

O. Henry once said that you could sell more gold bricks at the corner of Forty-Second Street and Broadway than any place in the world. We might have carried it a bit further and said that we Americans are the biggest suckers in the world.

Your answer is Schmeling.

In his own country Herr Max got the frigid stare and the icy mit. The hard headed Germans needed only one look at the Sharkey-Schmeling fight pictures to see that their "champion" was a false alarm. They saw Schmeling was but putty in Sharkey's hands before the low blow that left the Black Uhlan grovelling on the canvas.

So when it became time to award the Purple Scarf emblematic of the champion who did most in sport for the Fatherland Schmeling wasn't even considered. The coveted sports trophy went to a German bike rider.

More recently when it was announced that Schmeling had refused to meet Sharkey, from whom he won the title, and was going to take on Young Stribling, who Sharkey had beaten, the Germans turned thumbs down on Schmeling, completely. Der Max was criticized and "roasted" from one end of Germany to the other.

How different America.

A group of sharpshooters and millionaires meet in New York, completely ignore the rules of sportsmanship, forget all about Schmeling's promises to give Sharkey a return match and calmly foist a Schmeling-Stribling affair on the public. The dear public swallows it hook, line and sinker.

O. Henry certainly was right. He said a mouthful.

BIT ON BOSTON'S BIG HACK WILSON

IF WESLEY SCHULMERICH does as well in his first year in the National League as did his old Los Angeles team mate, Wally Berger, then Providence help opposing pitchers who face our two Boston outfielders.

In his first year in the majors Berger bounced off a total of 38 home runs and otherwise maltreated opposing twirlers.

	AB.	H.	2B.	3B.	HR.	Pct.
Schulmerich	559	202	52	20	11	.361
Berger	590	214	39	14	18	.363

Schulmerich did not hit the ball so hard but he hit more consistently.

This strapping new addition to the Boston outfield is a bigger Hack Wilson. He stands 5 feet 11 inches and tips the beam at 210 pounds.

WIN OR LOSE, THESE MALONEY ROOTERS ARE WITH THE BOSTON BOY

RUTH — JIM — VIRGINIA

JIM MALONEY, Boston heavyweight, leaves Boston tomorrow to battle Primo Carnera at Miami. Jim is idolized by Boston fight fans, but win, lose or draw, Jim has a few loyal rooters who never desert him. He is shown with his wife and children who are sure their hero will conquer the giant Italian in the Miami conflict in March.

Baseball Gives Players Fine Return for Efforts

By JOE CASHMAN

Headline ball players who complain that no matter how much they are receiving, they are being greatly underpaid when what they give to the game in return is considered, are either trying to fool the public or they don't know what they are talking about.

Listen to the statement made by Eddie Morgan of the Cleveland Indians in threatening to quit baseball in favor of his father's boxmaking business:

"Just figure it out for yourself," Morgan said. "I am giving the better part of my life to baseball. I can't go on forever. Where will I be when my race is run? Nowhere. Then it will be too late to learn a new business."

Hundreds of other big league performers have said practically the same thing in the past and hundreds more undoubtedly will in the future. It is the ball player's best after-dinner speech. But it's a lot of hokum.

We followed Morgan's advice and figured it out for ourselves. And our answer is that he would be an extremely fortunate young man if he could make as much in 25 years outside of the game as he could by remaining in it for 10 years more.

Morgan Might Make $125,000 From Game

He is still a youngster, only 25, and, judging from his great playing at first base for the Indians last season, would have no trouble collecting at least $125,000 before he would be forced to retire from the game.

At $100 a week it would take 25 years to make $125,000, and, believe it or not, a "century" per is a mighty handsome salary in any line of business these days.

A good ball player should be able to earn $100,000 during his playing career; a better-than-the-average player $150,000, a great player $200,000 or more.

Few, indeed, of them could make as much in any other field of endeavor if they lived to be 100 and were able to work until the day of their death.

It's true that they give the best years of their lives to the game, and if they don't know how to do anything else, they are rather old to learn when they are through. But they shouldn't need to worry about the future when that time comes.

They receive a most respectable year's salary for eight months' work, have all their expenses paid for five of those eight months and are allowed to make all the extra money they can during the four months off season.

If they can't save enough in 10 or 12 years under those conditions to be independent for the rest of their lives, it's a good bet that they would go through life always just one jump ahead of the sheriff, if they were in any other business.

DETROIT MAN IS TO AID DUNN

James Eustis of Detroit has been added to the executive staff at the Boston Garden. He will be first assistant to Dick Dunn, new general manager. Eustis served in the same capacity to Dunn at the Olympia A. A. in Detroit.

There will be a directors' meeting at the Boston Garden tomorrow. It is expected that William F. Carey, president of the New York Madison Square Garden Corp. will be present. It is likely that the appointment of Frank Lyons as president of the Boston Garden will be announced at this meeting.

Joyce's election as president was decided upon at the last directors' meeting of the Garden, but the official announcement of this fact has not been made.

Maloney Will Set Out for Florida Tomorrow

By JACK CONWAY

Jim Maloney has been playing with his youngsters at his new home in the Merrymount section of Quincy during the past few days. Shamus wants to be in the company of his children and Mrs. Maloney as much as possible as he leaves for Miami, Fla., tomorrow to start training for his 10-round bout with the gigantic Primo Carnera, which will be staged at the New York Garden's arena in Miami on March 5.

Ruth, four and a half years old, and Virginia, three, have been their daddy's pals.

Shamus planned to motor to Marlboro with his family today for a visit with Claire, six, who is a student at St. Anne's Academy.

Maloney leaves for the South in company of Dan Carroll, his manager, and Mrs. Carroll.

Mrs. Maloney wished to remain at home so that she can be near Claire.

It is a happy and united family in the Maloney household. Of course the youngsters are very proud of their daddy's athletic prowess.

And Shamus added, "Why not?" "Didn't he lick Carnera at the Boston Garden last November?"

Nobody expected Maloney to win at that time. Carnera had been bowling over opposition in all parts of the country and was supposed to be unbeatable. Maloney then halted his drive in impressive style.

The distance of the Florida bout is 10 rounds. This was a strategic victory for Large Dan Carroll.

The Carnera management favored a 15-round bout. They felt that in a long battle Primo would be sure to win.

Maloney has never boxed 15 rounds, and so Carroll held out for the 10-round route. It was 20 rounds or no fight. And Carroll won his point.

Shamus will play around for 10 days or so upon his arrival in Florida. Golf, bathing and auto trips will occupy his time until he gets acclimated.

Jere Gardner will then migrate into Miami with a flock of sparring partners, Marty Gallagher and Napoleon Jack Dorval, members of the Carroll stable are on the Miami card and they will help condition Shamus for his jam with Big Primo.

Today, however, Shamus isn't

VERMONT BOY IN BIG RACE SATURDAY

By BILL CONNELL

Frank Crowley of the University of Penn, a Vermont boy, will be one of a fleet field in the K. of C. mile race at the William C. Prout Memorial track games at the Boston Garden on Saturday night.

Crowley, when running for Allentown Prep last spring, whirled around the U. of Penn track to snatch a National scholastic championship and smash the mile figure in the effort. He won the race in 4 minutes 21 2-5 seconds, remarkable racing for a schoolboy.

Bill Connell

Even that performance did not represent his top effort, for he was not pushed hard. Experts at the meet remarked that the boy probably was good for under 4:20.

Crowley sailed forth from prep school to Holy Cross, but soon abandoned the Crusaders in favor of Villanova. The latter college did not hold him, though, and he turned up next at U. of Penn., where he intends to stay, from present indications.

Because of the transfer ruling, he is not eligible to represent Penn this season, so officially he is running unattached.

Coach Asked That Boy Be Given Chance

Lawson Robertson, U. of Penn track coach and developer of many record-breaking runners, has so much confidence in the lad that he requested the K. of C. committee to allow Crowley in the K. of C. mile.

Crowley, practically unknown, will have a great chance to jump into the sports spotlight if he wins, for he will run in one of the finest mile race fields which could now be assembled in this country.

Ray Conger is the best of the lot, Conger, with his heart set on an Olympic games victory next year, is training in every before in his track career and expects to do his finest running this season. So beating Conger, with his greyhound speed and grace, will be a tough assignment for anyone.

Bob Dalrymple of the B. A. A., who holds the N. E. A. A. A. U. two-mile crown and record, is another starter in the limited express field. Bob has been more interested in longer treks than two miles for the past few years, but he has been working for speed and has recovered much of his old time zip.

Gene Venzke of Sweden, a good miler, is the other announced starter. And though the K. of C. committee hasn't announced the entry yet, it is practically certain that the great Dr. Paul Martin of Switzerland will be on the mark when the gun sends away the K. of C. milers.

Conger, Martin and Lermond Race in Newark

Newark, N. J., Jan. 28 (AP)—The first of the season's major indoor track and field games—the Newark A. C. games—will be held here tonight with an international duel between Ray Conger and Dr. Paul Martin, Switzerland, to top the program, in the 1000-yard run. Both men feel perfectly at home at this distance.

It will be the first start of the season for Martin. Conger had his winning 1931 debut several weeks ago.

Leo Lermond, Boston A. A. distance ace, battles Gus Moors, negro star of the Brooklyn Harriers, in the two-mile. The field for the event includes Bernie McCafferty of Holy Cross, Charlie Bisbee of the Boston A. A. and Eddie Kelly, former Holy Cross runner now competing for the Newark A. C.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

If you contemplate new club equipment for the new ball it would suggest the six-club set, and particularly so if you buy new woods with them. The woods come with the fourth wood this year, the wood cleek. This displaces the No. 1 iron and, to some extent, the mid-iron. The spoon and wood cleek have heavily-lofted faces which make it easier to get at the ball and pick it up. The No. 1 iron always is a difficult iron to use with any reliably good effect and with most players it represents nothing but extra load for the caddy boy. Another unusual development in golf this year is that these new clubs, for the first time, are to be sold on the basis of $10 or $12 down and a monthly payment whenever they can catch you. Maybe this well-known buying "without feeling it" method is meant to be a consolation for us to make us forget some of the troubles we may have with the big ball.

"I'll Fight Sharkey Again," Says Max Schmeling

CHAMP SAYS HE CAN BEAT BOSTON MAN

New York, Jan. 28 (AP)—His broad face beaming and black eyes shining with pleasure, Max Schmeling moved into New York today, genuinely happy to be back in the land that voted him heavyweight champion of the world.

The youthful German sailed into Brooklyn late last night on the liner Europa, accompanied by his trainer, Max Machon, a dozen pieces of baggage and a cute little dachshund named Cecilie, third in the line of Teuton dogdom aristocracy that is rapidly becoming the favorite pet of the New York fight writers' fraternity.

Max appeared to be in splendid physical condition, eager to get to work on preparations for his title battle in June with young Bill Stribling, Georgia's challenger for the heavyweight crown.

He was anxious to explain that, regardless of statements in the papers, he has never made derogatory remarks regarding either the New York State Athletic Commission, which recently stripped him of his title, or the German Boxing Federation, with which he has been tilting.

Over and over again he insisted that he wants to fight Sharkey. He feels sure that eventually he will face the Boston sailor in a prize ring, but for the present:

"Joe Jacobs iss mine manager, I am der fighter. He manages, I fights. Vass he says goes.

"While Stribling knocks out Phil Scott and Otto von Porat since last I am here," Schmeling argued, "what has Sharkey done? Nossing. Sharkey should have fought as Stribling did. I cannot ignore Stribling's record. If I don't fight him the N. B. A. suspends me. If I don't fight Sharkey New York suspends me.

Max Says He Will Fight Sharkey Again

Schmeling said that he had only seen Stribling fight once, back in 1928, when the Georgia slasher knocked out Johnny Squires with a half-dozen punches in Madison Square Garden.

"He is very good," said Max seriously. "I have a hard fight ahead of me. But I am sure I can beat him."

Since no site has ben chosen for the match with Stribling, although the bout probably will take place in Chicago, Schmeling has no immediate plans for a training camp. He starts February 9 on a nation-wide exhibition tour lasting until April 27. He has six months to acclimate himself again.

During his lengthy stay in Germany Schmeling said he had trained constantly, boxing three times a week in a camp 40 miles outside of Berlin in addition to his gym work and almost daily rounds of golf. His exhibition tour will be preceded by an appearance in Philadelphia next week.

MR. BOSTON

By Jack Conway

Billy Cuddy tells Mr. Boston that the foreign heavyweights who will compete in the international bouts at the Boston Garden on next Monday night are going to experience some severe opposition.

"I have picked Henry Surette of Fitchburg as one of the boys to represent the United States in the heavyweight class," chirped Cuddy. "Surrette has been groomed by Dan Carroll and Jack Gardner and looks like one of the most promising of the simon pure punchers.

"Dick Madden of Dorchester, who also packs a punch in each hand, will also represent Uncle Sam in the heavyweight group. One more man will be picked for this division.

Mr. Boston

"The foreign boxers were presented with keys to the city when they visited Mayor Curley at the City Hall.

"The visiting mitt wielders are in fine condition and confident they will go over big in their American debut.

"I find that there is intense interest in the appearance of the Irish boxers. This is natural in Boston. The Norwegian and Belgian boxers have also come in for considerable attention.

King Levinsky Rated as Terrific Socker

"The signing of King Levinsky to meet Jack Gagnon at the Boston Garden a week from Friday night," declared Mr. Boston, "is in line with the policy of Dick Dunn and Billy Ames to show as many new stars as possible. Levinsky has been knocking the opposition cold in matches in the Middle West. Tommy Loughran is one of the few boxers who have been able to stop the rush of Kingfish.

"Gagnon isn't as clever as Loughran and so Levinsky will have a better opportunity to score with his famous punch. Kingfish has dropped most of his rivals in one to two rounds. It will be refreshing to get a peek at this puncher.

QUAKERS HOLD BRUINS TO TIE SCORE

The Philadelphia Quakers pulled a surprise by holding the Bruins a 3-to-3 tie at the Garden.

The result was totally unexpected as the Rossmen were decided favorites to win. It was one of the biggest upsets of the season and was the first time this season that the Quakers played anywhere on even terms with the Bears.

Manager Rose' team did not coordinate and the success of the Quakers to obtain a tie may be ascribed to this alone.

Perch Cude, the Philadelphia goalie, gave a brilliant exhibition in the net for the Quakers. He made 49 stops, and but for him the Bruins would have won easily. He had 19 stops in the third period when the Rossmen skated assault after assault.

It was a wild game. The Bruins played individually and against the players rather than with the disc. So well did the Quakers acquit themselves that they were cheered when they came on the ice for the second period.

Rough play was allowed by the referees. Corbeau and Daigneault, who overlooked many episodes they could have classed as infractions of the rules.

TIRE DRILLS PLANNED BY CAMPBELL

Daytona Beach, Fla., Jan. 28 (AP)—Tire drills by mechanics promise to play a vital part in the success or failure of the attempt Captain Malcolm Campbell hopes to make here next week on the world's automobile speed record.

Under existing regulations, the veteran British car driver must make one run with the wind and another against it at an average two-way speed greater than 231 miles an hour to shatter the present mark. Both runs must be completed in a given 30-minute period.

Campbell plans to put his crew of six mechanics through a series of tire drills, holding a stop watch on each, to determine which four can work the fastest in unbolting the tires and installing new ones.

"I Hope Your Example Will Compel The Adoption Of Sanitary Methods"

STATE BOARD OF MEDICAL REGISTRATION

Rhode Island Public Health Commission

THOMAS J. McLAUGHLIN, M. D.

WOONSOCKET, May 21st, 1930.

The American Cigar Company,
#111 Fifth Avenue,
New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen:-

Permit me to commend you for your crusade against the old-fashioned method of cigar making which involved the use of "spit" or "saliva." There are many unsanitary processes still employed in industry which are very difficult to eliminate without the aid of industry itself.

Not only the public officer charged with the responsibility of improving conditions of health generally but every one immediately recognizes that the use of "spit" in the manufacture of cigars is not only unsanitary but has latent dangers to health of great magnitude.

I feel it incumbent upon myself, therefore, as a public officer charged with protecting the public health to use this means of telling you that in campaigning against such a method of manufacture you are rendering a public service.

I sincerely hope that your example and your campaign will compel the abandonment of such methods of manufacture of cigars by the industry generally and the adoption by all of the manufacturers of sanitary methods in the manufacture of cigars.

You are at liberty to use this expression of my commendation in the furtherance of your laudable campaign for better sanitation.

Yours very truly,
Thos. J. McLaughlin, M.D.
Chairman State Board of Health
State of Rhode Island.

...one of 56 health officials from 56 different points approving Cremo's crusade against spit or spit-tipping.

Every smoker, every wife whose husband smokes cigars, should read Dr. McLaughlin's letter.

"Who are the friends of 'Spit'?"

YOU MAY WELL ASK THIS QUESTION WHEN 56 IMPORTANT HEALTH OFFICIALS HAVE WRITTEN SO STRONGLY AGAINST THE EVILS OF SPIT OR SPIT-TIPPING.

Dr. McLaughlin writes: "Permit me to commend you for your crusade against the old-fashioned method of cigar making which involved the use of 'spit'."

The war against spit is a crusade of decency. Join it...Smoke Certified Cremo—a really wonderful smoke—mild—mellow—nut-sweet! Every leaf entering the clean, sunny Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture.

N. E. AIRPORTS STUDIED FOR WAR GAME

Three army pilots from the office of the chief of the air corps in Washington inspected Boston airport and many other local fields to determine how many of the 800 planes that will participate in aerial war maneuvers in the East this spring can be based in New England.

The trio was headed by Maj. H H. Arnold, flying a Falcon. He was accompanied by Capts. E. E. Adler and H. M. Elmendorf, each in a Douglas. They flew on from Bolling Field at the capital Monday. Maj. Arnold started back yesterday afternoon, stopping at Fairhand Field, Hartford, Ct., to determine its capacity as a base.

Capts. Adler and Elmendorf will return today and will also inspect the Hartford field en route.

Although New York will be the main base of these maneuvers, at or at Boston and vicinity. At first at least 200 planes will be quartered. It was believed that all of these would be taken care of at Boston airport, but now it seems likely that others will be scattered at smaller fields throughout New England.

The inspectors from Washington would make no official statement as to this effect, but it was generally understood the purpose of their visit was to determine what fields other than Boston could be used. These first inspection of other fields was made entirely from the air on a flight that lasted two hours 35 minutes.

Workers Not Prosperous Despite Hoover, Says Writer

Editor Boston American:

President Hoover, in an encouraging address to the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, points out that the millions of Americans using automobiles are not riding to the poorhouse.

The President sees in the Department of Commerce reports 3,500,000 new autos, made and sold last year.

According to the Central Trades and Labor council of Greater New York, representing 700,000 members, there are at least 15,000,000 workers without cars, 19,000,000 without radios, 5,000,000 without bathtubs and 3,000,000 without even sinks to wash in. The market is here, but they haven't the money.

President Green of the American Federation of Labor gave some interesting figures on the present depression. He shows that the working class through unemployment, and wage cuts, lost about nine billion dollars in wages during the past year.

What is a billion dollars? It is a thousand millions. One billion dollars represents about 4,000,000 pounds gold, or 2000 tons. It would take 400 five-ton trucks to transport this sum. So you can see what a huge sum the working class lost.

With $9,000,000,000 in circulation we sure would have prosperity. The workers could buy back all the necessities of life and commodities produced.

Urges Legion Stop "Non-Citizen Fight"

Editor Boston American:

The following is from a Canadian who has resided in the State of Massachusetts about 35 years and has been condemned by the American Legion as non-citizen and liable for deportation: Born in Canada of strictly Loyalist blood, came to the United States when I was 9 years old, educated in the American schools, married, and father of four American citizens. My father was made an American citizen long after I attained the age of 21. During draft in World War did not claim exemption, working for the government, classed in A-1, awaiting call to camp, continuing working in the tempo of a true American and have been unemployed since May 29; still the American Legion wants to bar me, along with many others, from this adopted country as non-citizens. Would suggest a very constructive idea for the American Legion to peruse in the future; that is, to adopt and constitute and place at the hands of these individuals some aid and help them secure their final status as citizens and so carry on the fine fundamentals so nobly laid down by the great forefathers of this wonderful republic of yours and perhaps mine, I hope, before long.

Readjust and set aside this idle talk and shallow discrimination against all of the class of non-citizens.

Complaint That State Underpays Its Clerks

Editor Boston American:

There is an old saying, "Many a truth is spoken in jest." The truth of this was most forcibly brought home to me through a letter printed in your column last week regarding entrance salaries for clerks appointed from Civil Service lists to city and state positions.

Since appointments are made from the leaders on these lists—lists based upon competitive examinations—it is logical to assume the ones receiving the positions are the most intelligent, yet for some unaccountable reason the remuneration they receive is such as only an intellectual moron would consider offering a prospective employe, and expect him to live without visiting a charitable institution at least once a week.

Legislation says a minimum wage—city and state laborers receive $3 per day; temporary clerks receive the same compensation—yet the permanent clerk, after waiting for his appointment, is lucky to get $18 or $20 a week.

On this princely salary some are trying to support a family. One, if single, may get by if he lives at home, walks to and from work and carries his lunches; but God help the married man or the fellow planning to get married.

Suggests Tax on Auto Drivers to Pay Insurance

Editor Boston American:

I was quite interested in figures published a few days ago, which stated that 26,661,596 motor vehicles were in use in the United States last year. There are several operators for some of these cars.

Just think what a $5 assessment on each operator would amount to in the payment of compulsory automobile insurance, to be collected by the public works department in each state, providing a federal law demanded it.

It seems to me that $133,307,980 ought to take care of settlement of personal injury automobile claims.

If insufficient, the assessment could be doubled and then be much lower than the rates charged by the insurance interests. The automobile owner would benefit and the public better protected. In Massachusetts we pay big premiums for compulsory insurance protection for personal injuries, but we have no protection for out of state cars touring in this section. As tourists come from all parts of the country every man, woman and child in the nation is liable to accident. It is, therefore, a federal responsibility.

I would like to know if there are any statistics available on amount of cash settlements for automobile personal injuries in the United States.

We seem to have plenty of reports on automobile accidents, but how do the dependents of the victims fare even if left to the generosity of some insurance adjuster who is out to make a reputation for himself I am sending a copy of this letter to Congressman Dallinger at Washington, and hope it may start something of interest to every individual in the country.

GOODWIN SENDS 'MAVERICK' FOR TUNNEL NAME

The first suggestion for Boston's new traffic tunnel that will connect with East Boston, and on which work will start in March, rolled into the Tunnel Editor of the Boston Evening American last night.

Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of the Finance Commission, a former resident of East Boston, supplies "Maverick Tunnel" as a possible name to distinguish it from the present East Boston Elevated tube.

"I think this suggestion contest is a good one," said Mr. Goodwin. "I am sure good suggestions will be submitted. It will be particularly interesting to present and former residents of East Boston."

Have you a suggestion for the new tunnel? The Boston Evening American will be interested in any suggestion you may offer.

Fill out the coupon and mail it to the Tunnel Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq.

The air in the new $16,000 traffic tunnel will be purer than that in any street, according to Col. Thomas F. Sullivan, chairman of the Boston Transit Commission. Fresh air will be forced through the tunnel ventilating system at the rate of 50 miles an hour and foul air will be forced out at a similar rate.

Forty police will be placed on duty over a 24-hour period, and a police station will be built on the Boston side of the tunnel.

Emergency trucks will be on hand at all times to guard against traffic tieups and automatic signal devices will reveal the presence of carbon monoxide gas in the tunnel, immediately putting fresh air pumps into operation.

TO BREAK UP A COLD IN A JIFFY

Feel Like a New Person In Just a Little While

People have found out that new-fangled ideas and notions don't break up colds. So millions have turned back to first principles and us what they know breaks one up in a jiffy. Even a "little" cold is too dangerous to trifle with.

The thing to do is to get Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of w ter, too—that's all.

Soon you'll start to feel like a new person. Things will loosen up, your head will clear; aching go—you'll be back on the job with a wallop.

Get Hill's now. It is a scientific formula made to do ONE THING WELL: to knock a cold—not to cure a thousand ailments. Get your money back if it doesn't work with TWICE THE SPEED of anything else you've ever tried.

No Sleep for the "ACID"!

If there's no sleep for the wicked, there's less sleep for the "acid." Night after night of wakeful tossing on your bed, of wild dreams and hot flashes and cold sweats are some of the signs of acidity. Besides causing acid-indigestion, with gassy fullness, sourness and burning, an excess of stomach acid creates intestinal poisons that sap our strength and vitality and make our nerves so raw and jumpy we can't sleep at night even though we be dog-tired.

A remarkable new tablet now stops acidity correctly. Pyrosan consists of four simple, harmless, anti-acid ingredients in scientifically balanced proportions which not only afford immediate relief but three of them remain for a longer time in the stomach to prevent recurring Acidity between meals, in other words, Pyrosan is intended not only to afford you prompt comfort but permanency of results, as well.

Don't let acid wound your digestion and how peaceful and refreshing your sleep when the acid is reduced get a package of Pyrosan in tablets from any good druggist and take it for a week as directed. If the week doesn't give you a surprise, your money will be refunded.

THE MYSTERY OF GERALDINE

By ANTHONY ABBOT

Suitor Killed Geraldine, Theory of Official

How the Story Started

Geraldine Foster, a very attractive young reception clerk in the Washington sq. office of Dr. Humphrey Maskell, "Laughing Doctor," vanished from her Manguerite Heights apartment in The Esplanade on the night before Christmas. Her roommate, Betty Canfield, reported her disappearance to police three days after Christmas and appealed directly to Police Commissioner Thatcher Colt for aid. He went himself to the apartment to search and question Betty. Torn letters of Geraldine's interested Colt. Then he visited Dr. Maskell, who told of a mysterious dark woman caller. Colt discovers the slain body of the missing Geraldine Foster in a grave in the woods.

Now Go On

CHAPTER 10

"Hot-Spur" Enters Case

DOCTOR MULTOOLER looked around over his shoulder and replied to Colt a question of how long Geraldine had been dead:

"I can only guess until I make an autopsy. But I would say not more than 36 hours."

Thatcher Colt's face expressed the deepest amazement.

"Thirty-six hours!" he repeated. "That seems impossible."

The doctor smiled with an air of superior knowledge

"Impossible, Mr. Commissioner? The state of the body tells me it has not been dead less than 48 hours, at the utmost."

Thatcher Colt made no reply, but his sombre eyes, staring into space, seemed to be contemplating some infernal mystery that puzzled and horrified him.

He remained there, while a detective, at his orders, scraped the refuse from under the dead girl's fingernails and deposited it in separate envelopes, each marked to identify the finger and hand from which it had been taken. This procedure, a piece of modern police technique, has helped in the solution of many baffling crimes, but in no case did it play a more erratic part than in the curious mystery in which we were now entangled. Then Sergeant Wickes, from the Statistican and Criminal Identification Bureau, inked the dead girl's finger tips and took the black impression of her whorls and loops.

Cars Drove Off

Meanwhile, Neil McMahon had been filling in the blank space on a tag known in the department as U. F. No. 95, which is placed on the windshield of every car of all dead bodies in homicide cases.

If sadly the body was carried out in a canvas wagon, waiting to carry it downtown, and Doctor Multooler proposed at once to follow it.

"When can I have your final report?" asked Thatcher Colt, as the doctor was departing.

"Some time before morning. Shall I send it to you and not to the district attorney?"

"Please send it to my office at headquarters. I shall be waiting for it."

The assistant medical examiner looked a little bewildered, but bowed and departed.

We heard the two cars snorting and driving off down the narrow descent of Peddler's Hill. Then Thatcher Colt and I stood in the kitchen and waited for reports. Already the hunt was organized, with that skilful military precision which Thatcher Colt had brought into the department. Just as the woods were being scoured, so every detail of the house was also being gone over. Some of the men were making notes of the surroundings with special regard to the distance and relative position of house and grounds, and presently would actually bring drawn of these things; some day to be enlarged and attached to a jury maps of the position of the house the layout of the rooms even the position of the furniture—encyclopedic details of the crime and its locale were being assembled.

Bottles Found

One of the first results of this systematic search was the finding of two large bottles, several hundred feet distant from the grave. They were brought in by Detective Schwab, and Thatcher Colt received them with great interest.

"Remember," he said, "that Geraldine Foster—or at least a girl resembling her—was seen leaving the house in Washington sq. in company with another woman—and both carried large bottles, just like this, and also just like another in the back room of Maskell's suite of offices. We should give more thought to those bottles, later, Tony."

He paused and smiled at me.

"For your peace of mind," he

New Auto Insurance Law Advocated

PRESENT ONE BRANDED A MISTAKE

Put on Books Against Better Judgment of Legislators, Charges Sawyer

The Massachusetts compulsory automobile insurance law was placed on the statute books "against the better judgment of the saner members of the House and Senate," Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware told the joint legislative committee on insurance today.

By Atty. Philip Nichols, appearing for the Boston Chamber of Commerce, it was asserted that Massachusetts made a mistake in putting the law on her books, for it has resulted in increasing instead of decreasing accidents.

Atty. Nichols spoke in favor of a bill that would scrap the present law and substitute another, combining the best features of automobile insurance laws of other states.

BREEDS CARELESSNESS

"I am not entering into a program to replace compulsory insurance," he said, "as there is much controversy over that. Some favor a state fund, some the New Hampshire law and some the Connecticut law.

"I voted against the present compulsory insurance law when it was before the Legislature because I know there is an inherent weakness in human nature to be careless when insured.

"The law has worked out as I thought it would. Because they are insured, men say: 'Well, I am insured, and what do I care.' And an accidents occur.

"The other objection I had, and still have, is that it is too big a tax on automobile owners. A total of $32,000,000 has been paid by the motorists of Massachusetts for compulsory insurance since the present law went into effect, and that money was paid to make the highways safe. Instead, it has resulted in making them less safe.

PROPOSES BOARD

"This law was put on the books against the better judgment of the saner members of the House and Senate. There are about 40 lawyers in both branches who had a large part in putting the bill over."

Attorney Nichols advocated the establishment of a board of inquiry of three members to force motorists who have accidents to take out insurance policies of $5000 or $10,000, and to pay additional premiums in case of additional accidents.

Lexington Dentist Escapes in Crash

Dr William L. Cosgrove, a dentist, of Grove st., Lexington, had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday when the automobile he was driving was in collision with a truck, heavily loaded with milk, at Bedford st. and Elm ave., in Lexington.

Dr. Cosgrove told the police that the traffic signal light turned green for him to cross Bedford st. on Elm ave. when the truck, which it is alleged went by a red light, crashed into his machine. The truck was operated by Alfred Weisinger of Bedford st., Lexington. Dr. Cosgrove was shaken up.

Bride May Be Deported

MRS. DOMINICA PANUSUK, 29, is awaiting decision as to whether she will be allowed to stay in this country or not. It is charged Samuel Skorski, a wrestler, got a friend, John Panusuk, to marry her in Canada so she might come to this country. Panusuk, above, claims his wife never lived with him after marriage in Canada. (Staff photos.)

GEN. EDWARDS OUT OF DANGER

Maj.-Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, World War commander of the Yankee Division, was reported well out of the woods today in Phillips House, Massachusetts General Hospital, where he has been a patient since Jan. 11.

He has gained steadily in strength since his setback Saturday night, but he is still far too ill to think of writing his war memoirs or a history of the 26th Division.

Col. John W. Hyatt, the general's war time aide today denied that Gen. Edwards or he had made any such plans.

THE REPORT

"The report undoubtedly has been confused with an offer made to Gen. Edwards by a publisher several years ago," added Col. Hyatt. "At the time publishers were so eager for the general to write his memoirs that they had a representative almost camp on his front door steps in Westwood.

"Others had urged Gen. Edwards to write his war impressions and he was on the point of engaging a stenographer when Mrs. Edwards was taken ill and died two years ago.

"If he decides to tackle the job after his recovery it certainly couldn't be before six months at the earliest."

Duane Reinstates Waltham Forester

Joseph Quatiers, employe of the Waltham forestry department, who was suspended for 30 days by Mayor Patrick J. Duane a week ago on a charge of fighting at City Hall, has won his fight for reinstatement.

Mayor Duane announced today that he had revoked the suspension because Michael Carney, the victim of the alleged assault, failed to appear at a hearing granted at the demand of Quatiers.

HEATER BLAST BURNS FIREMAN

Ladderman George Carmody of the Revere fire department was painfully burned today when an oil heater exploded during a fire in the barber shop of Michael S. Ragusa of 268A Broadway, Revere.

Carmody was trying to shut off the valve when the blast spattered him with flaming oil. He was treated by ambulance and taken to Chelsea Memorial Hospital suffering burns of the face, hands and forearms.

The basement and building were damaged to the extent of $500.

TRIPLETS BORN TO COUPLE IN SOMERVILLE

23-Year-Old Woman Already Mother to Two Other Children

James H. Barlow of 19 Endicott ave., West Somerville, whose wife yesterday presented him with boy triplets, was today prideully receiving the congratulations of friends.

Although the young couple already had two children, Marjorie, 19 months, and James H., Jr., 4, Barlow, an interior decorator, expressed his pleasure at the addition to his family.

"It certainly was a surprise," he said. "We never expected three, but they are welcome just the same. They weighed four pounds, four and a half, and five pounds respectively, and mother and children are doing well."

Dr. Crawford K. Seeley, who is a member of the hospital's obstetrics committee, officiated at the delivery of the boys, who, he expects, will be attending school in a few years. They were born at home.

Mrs. Barlow, who was Miss Margaret Tozzara of Belmont, is only 23 while her husband is three years her senior. They were married five years ago by the Rev. George E. Heath, D. D., at the College Ave. M. E. Church, Somerville.

Dedham Police to Dance

The annual concert and ball of the Dedham Police Relief Association will be given Friday evening in Memorial Hall, Dedham. State, county, town and police officials from surrounding towns will be guests. President Charles McAuliffe is general chairman.

MRS. JULIA DONAHUE AT TOP, MILDRED SAMPSON, 10 years old, of 124 Main st., Charlestown. She was carried to safety by James Geagan, a neighbor, when flames from the burning building next door broke through the windows of her bedroom. The girl had just returned from a hospital after an operation. Geagan is shown at lower right. At lower left is Mrs. Julia Donahue, mother of the late Jack Donahue, who sat in her home across the street and watched the building where her son started his career, in the old Union Theater, burn. (Staff photos.)

MOTHER OF LATE STAR WATCHES BLAZE

Invalid Girl Carried to Safety as Flames Sweep Block in Charlestown

While Mrs. Julia Donahue watched from her home at 11 Union st., Charlestown, the building in which her son, the late Jack Donahue, stage star, started his career at Maia and Union sts. was swept by flames early today.

Three alarms were sounded for the blaze which threatened the Thump... six business section of Charlestown, and caused damage estimated at $5,000.

Mildred Sampson 10 released from City Hospital yesterday following an operation was carried from her bedroom on the third floor of 124 Main st., by James Geagan of No. 1 Junction st. as flames swept the building, struck a corner of her window.

FLAMMIDS ROUTED

Three fire men were driven out of the 3 floor of the burning building as flames swept the house. They were Mrs. Kate Harrington and her daughters Ann, 14, and Mary, 8, on the first floor, Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. O'Malley on the second floor and Mrs. James Hamilton on the third.

The burned structure formerly housed the old Union Theater where Jack Donahue first appeared before the public. The Donahue home is diagonally across the street.

Scores of tenement houses nearby were menaced. Dense clouds of smoke enveloped the Elevated structure as it swept past them, and when ... and outbound trains

TRAFFIC AT STANDSTILL

Lobs of hose cluttered Main st from Thompson sq. to City sq. and surface cars and auto traffic was practically at a standstill. Heavy clouds of smoke, pierced with darts of flame, attracted thousands of spectators.

The building, owned by the George T. Horan estate, houses the Thompson sq. bowling alleys on the first floor. There are 12 alleys, eight of which were reported recently installed at a cost of $15,000. The alleys were extensively damaged by flames and water.

The two upper floors, occupied by the Horan Furniture Co. were used for storing furniture. Both floors were packed with furniture and were divided into many small rooms by partitions. Heavy damage was done here as firemen could not readily access.

DISCOVERED BY MOTHER

The blaze was discovered by Mrs. James Geagan as she was returning to her home at 78 Washington st., shortly after midnight.

She shouted to her son James, who was waiting for her at the corner of Washington st. and the youth sounded the alarm from ...

He then ran into the house at 124 Main st., and wrapping the Sampson girl in a blanket, carried her to the street where she was helped by neighbors until the flames were extinguished. She was operated on for the removal of tonsils.

District Chief Philip A. Tague ordered the second alarm sounded. Chief Henry Fox arrived soon after and sent immediately ordered the third alarm. Because of the thickly congested district Chief Fox stated that the cause of the blaze had not yet been determined and estimated the damage ... $5,000.

$50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned in to the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

What is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip.

If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or the most unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip is an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

GIRL IS ROBBED OF $1240

A thief sneaking up behind Miss Rumilda Ratto of 123 Appleton st., Arlington, at the busy intersection of North and Cross sts., North End, late yesterday, snatched from her grasp a leather wallet containing $1240 and made his getaway. The girl, an employe of the A. Maggioli Company, 15 Ferry st., North End, was on her way to a bank to deposit the money for her firm.

As the girl felt the wallet torn from her hand she screamed and her cries attracted the attention of a score of pedestrians all of whom were too startled to apprehend the thief.

More than $300 of the money in the wallet was in cash and the remainder was in checks that had been endorsed. The victim described the thief as a young man about 20 years old wearing a plaid jacket and no hat.

LADDER TRUCK CRASHES AUTOS

When Ladder Truck 20 crashed into three parked taxicabs, Ladderman John A. Kearney, 40, of 315 Forest Hills st., Jamaica Plain, was thrown from the rear of the truck and seriously hurt, last night. The machine was going along Centre st. and was turning a slight curve at Hyde sq., Jamaica Plain, when the rear wheels skidded on the wet pavement and crashed into the three automobiles.

Ladderman Kearney, tiller-man on the rear of the truck, was thrown from the high seat and landed 10 feet away near the sidewalk. He was taken back to the fire station at Egleston sq. and then to the City hospital. He suffers a possible fracture of his spine, according to physicians.

Q And that is in Allston? A—Yes.

Q—While she was at Huntington ave. and at Fiske Terrace did you occupy the room? A No, I might have slept in the room once or twice if I was working until 2 o'clock in the morning.

Q—Now did you have permission to leave the city at night while you were on the police department? A—Yes.

Q.—Now, Mr. Garrett, you were detailed to liquor and narcotic squads when? A—February 25, 1922.

Q—Did you say February 25 or February 5? A—February 25, 1922.

Q.—Who was the superior officer of the liquor and narcotic squad at that time? A—Capt. Charles P. Reardon

PUT IN CHARGE OF SQUAD

Q—How long did Capt. Reardon remain in charge? A—I don't remember.

Q—Some time later you were assigned to a regular detail of duty? A—Yes, sales.

Q—After that you were put in charge of a detail? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Some other work was assigned to you? A—Investigations of anonymous letters, complaints and serving search warrants.

Q—Then was your time after squads had been assigned? A—Yes sir.

Q—You were put in charge of one squad? A—Yes sir. By Capt. Charles T. Reardon in 1922.

Q—You continued in charge until you were transferred from the liquor and narcotic squad? A—Yes sir.

Q.—Give us the names of some of the men who worked in your squad? A—There were a number of them who worked in my squad and the unit. Some of the names are Daly, Fortin, Wedlock, McGinnis, Roche, Troy, Hickey, Hollen, Tobin, Kelly—That's all I remember at the present.

HIS DUTY MAKE RAIDS

Q.—Who were your superiors? A.—Capt. Reardon, Inspector Patterson who later became Capt. Patterson and Sergt. Hines who later became Lieut. Hines.

Q—Captain Reardon is now dead, I believe? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Later it became your duty to investigate anonymous letters and make raids? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Explain just what the duties were on anonymous letters? A—Letters would come to the commissioner or superintendent and would be forwarded to Capt. Patterson, he in turn would give me the letters to investigate and I would observe conditions in and around the place complained of and if the condition warranted it I would procure a warrant and raid the place.

Q—Did you do any other police work? A—Yes: gamblers, narcotics, houses of ill-fame and other work.

Q—Now can you tell us, Mr. Garrett, during the time you were attached to the squad the number of raids made? A—We made between 15,000 and 17,000 arrests. I never did count the raids.

Q—How many arrests did you say? A—I would say between 15,000 and 17,000.

Q—On all these occasions of raids you were accompanied by other officers of the squad?, A—Yes, sir.

Q—At some time you raided the Ritz Hotel? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Do you remember the first occasion? A—I remember part of it.

Q—When was that first raid? A—January, 1924, I believe.

Q—That raid was the result of an investigation following an anonymous communication? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Were you accompanied on that raid by other members of the squad? A—Yes, sir.

Q—On that raid did you make a large seizure of liquor?A—Yes sir.

Q—And subsequent to that raid there were other raids? A—Yes.

And these subsequent raids were with search warrants? A—Yes sir.

Q—How many raids were there if you remember? A—There was one in 1924, one in 1925, one in '27, I think it was four in all.

Q Subsequent to January, 1924, were there any raids in the Ritz hotel without serch warrants? A—Not the entire hotel

ALWAYS ON BUSINESS

Q—Did you on some occasions go to the Ritz Hotel without search warrants? A Yes, sir.

Q How many times if you recall? A Ten or twelve, maybe more.

Q Were you always accompanied by members of the squad? A Yes.

Q—What would be done on these occasions, just give us an explanation of what took place? A—Why, I would look over the matheticlar, the kitchen, and note down what was going on.

Q—On any of these occasions was there any seizure of liquor without a search warrant? A—No, sir.

Q—Did you ever go to the Ritz on any occasion without a search warrant when sales were made to police officers or other persons not connected with the police department? A—Yes, sir.

Q—Now, Mr. Garrett, were you ever in the Ritz hotel on any occasion on other than police business? A—No, sir.

NEVER DINED THERE

Q—Were you ever at the Ritz hotel with Mrs. Garrett? A—No, sir

Q—Were you ever there with Miss Hatch and Mrs. Garrett? A—No, sir

Q—Were you ever there to dine with Miss Hatch and Mrs. Garrett? A—No, sir

Q—Following the raid in January, 1924, when did you visit the Ritz next? A—Before holidays or any big game of football or baseball, New Year's or Lalowees.

Q—Ever go there alone? A—No, sir.

Q—Did you ever have any conversation with Mr. Sullivan except conversation at a particular raid or the trials that followed raids? A—No, sir.

ABOUT MRS. FRASER

Q—Now, Mr. Garrett, at some time did you meet a Mrs. Fraser? A—Yes.

Q—When was that? A—Early in 1923.

Now without mentioning any names what was the occasion of it? A—She was a married lady and she had a young man there. I didn't like: and I told my wife not to go there.

Asst. Dist.-Atty. Doyle interrupted with "Just when was that?" Garret replied "Some time in 1923," and Doyle asked "Just what month?"

Garrett: "I can't just recall."

Q—What did you do then? A—I stopped going there.

Q—You mea nyou ceased to be a friend? A—Yes, I ceased to be a friend.

MRS. GARRETT HAD MEANS

Q—When Mrs. Garrett and you were married, whether or not Mrs. Garrett had any means? A—Yes, I understood she did.

Q—How large a business was it? A—She had four or five trucks and two or three teams I believe there were two teams on routes, and three or four trucks.

Q—How many were employed as help? A—About 12, I believe.

Q—And from your observation, would you say it was a substantial business? A—Yes.

Q—Did you ever see any indication of her means? A—Yes.

Q—Coming down to the time you moved down to Hingham—What was the reason for your going down there? A—My wife wanted to go and I went. That is th eonly reason I can think of.

Q—Did she go into business down there? A—Yes

Q—What sort of business was it? A—Milk business.

Q—Did you have occasion while your wife was in business in Hingham into go down there every night? A—Practically every night, yes.

Q—Did you have anything to do with the conduct or the management of the business? A—No.

Q—At any time did you make any purchases for your wife? A—I may have.

Q—There has been some evidence that you talked with a Mr. Elkerton about a refrigerator. A—I talked with him about a pasteurizer.

Q.—Will you tell us what conversation you had with him? A—He came to police headquarters and he said my wife got in touch with him about a pasteurizing machine, and he wanted me to see it. He told me how it worked and showed me all the parts, and I said, "If that's what she wants, give it to her." I said, "Write out the order and it will save you from going down to Hingham." He wrote out an order, and I think I signed it.

HE SIGNED NOTES

Q.—Did you sign orders for your wife? A—I signed lots of notes, but I don't remember signing orders.

Q—What was the occasion for you signing the notes? A—I don't remember.

Q—What was the reason? A—St. had to have my signature if she wanted to get things on what you might call the installment plan.

Q—Do you know a Mr. Ryan? A Yes.

Q—Do uheard him testify here about a conversation you had with him? A—I didn't have the conversation at the place he said.

Q—Where did you have the conversation with him? A—At the farm.

C—What was the conversation? A—I told him that I would be glad when she got the busines where she wanted it and I would quit the police business and get out of order and it will save you from it.

Ritz Raids Live Again

Swears He Never Gave His Wife Money to Be Deposited in Bank

Q—Did you, Mr. Garrett, while a member of the police department, particularly between 1924 and 1928, ever give your wife money to deposit in the bank, more than you earned in salarary as a police officer? A—No, sir.

Q—You had a bank account? A—Yes.

Q.—Where? A.—I had a Christmas Club, a bank account in the First National Bank, and at the bank on the corner of Washington and Court sts.—Exchange Trust.

Q—If your bank account at the Exchange Trust Co. shows deposits of $100 and $300 on occasions, can you give us an explanation of that, Mr. Garrett? A—Yes. I was a fight fan and I bet on the fights.

Q—Did you win money on the fights? A—Yes.

Q—Were the amounts large or small? A—Small.

DENIES HANDWRITING

Q—Mr. Garret, I show you a bank exhibit of the Boulevard Trust Co., dated March 15, 1925, is that your handwriting? A.—No sir.

Q—I show you bank exhibit No. 61——

At this point Mrs. Garret was seized with a coughing spell and a 15-minute recess was taken. After the recess Callahan asked:

Q—I show you exhibit 61, ten deposit slips of the National Rockland Bank, I ask you to look at them, are they your handwriting? A—No sir.

Q—Did you ever deposit any money in the name of Florence H. Garrett? A—No sir.

Q—I show you eight slips of the First National Bank, tell us if they are in your handwriting? A.—No, sir.

Q—I show you from Exhibit 74, slip on the account of Florence H. Garrett in the First National Bank No 24803, dated January 16, 1925 ,and ask you if this is your handwriting? A—No, sir.

Q—Directing your attention to a slip o nthe Brookline Trust Co., on the account of Florence H. Garrett, dated February 10, 1927, with a phrase "transfer from account 11892 and with the signature Florence H. Garrett on the slip, and ask you if the date is ni your handwriting? A—No, sir.

ABOUT RAID AT RITZ

Q—To your knowledge did you ever make deposits of any amount of money in the National Rockland Bank, Brookline Trust, First National Bank of the Boulevard Trust? A.—No sir.

Q—Do you recall the raid on the Ritz Hotel in February, 1925, when a large quantity of liquor was seized? A.—No sir.

Q—Mr. Sullivan has testified that on that raid a quantity valued at between $4300 and $5900 was seized. Do you remember any such quantity being seized there? A—Yes, sir.

A conference was held between Attys. Callahan and Gallagher after which Callahan called the attention of the witness to the date of the raid.

Q—Was that in April, 1925? A—Yes, sir.

SEIZED MUCH LIQUOR

Q—Tell us any incidents of that raid? A—I was there with a couple of other officers. I told Welby to stay in the office and watch the clerks. I had told the men to let no one take any bags out of there. Later one of the officers came and told me they had found the liquor,

New way to wash!
"Ready-made suds"
save time

Mrs. J. C. S., Jr.—
"Chipso Granules are wonderful! At last a hard working soap that doesn't need hot water to dissolve"

The new Chipso Granules plus lukewarm water give rich Chipso suds instantly. Very convenient for soaking clothes—you can use your water just as it comes from the faucet. Granules are "marvelous for the woman who is in a hurry—and aren't we all?" says a letter from Mrs Pauline Krueger.

Mrs. R. L. S.—
"Johnny's blouses used to have that 'washed-out' look"

"I used to think I had to boil my children's play-clothes to get them clean. And then they lost their freshness and wore out so quickly! That's why Chipso Granules are such a boon to me. I soak the clothes in those inches-thick suds. In the morning, with a rub or two, they're clean—and look new!"

You'll be as enthusiastic as this Cambridge user if you once try shortening your washday with Chipso Granules. Quick? Just try them! They're wonderful tiny soap dots—white as snow—safe for hands and colors—and you should see the work they do! They foam up instantly into the richest suds you ever used—even in lukewarm water. They soak dirt out of clothes, grease off dishes—safely. Something new!

Mrs. C. K.—
"My hands stay nicer now"

If you've been using a strong soap for your dishes, try Chipso Granules for a week. You'll be surprised to see how much smoother your hands get, and how much pleasanter dish-washing can be. These rich, instant suds soak grease off dishes in a hurry. A swish or two and dishes are done!

Mrs. B. S.—
"My clothes have a sweeter, fresher odor now"

When you open the big blue box, Chipso Flakes or Chipso Granules smell so fresh and clean you know that your Chipso-washed clothes will have a sweet fresh odor. There's another reason too—Chipso suds rinse out much more easily and quickly—so there's no soapy odor behind. Just the lovely, sweet fragrance of perfectly clean, soap-free clothes.

GARRETT SAYS HE NEVER GOT ANY MONEY FROM SULLIVAN

DENIES THAT HE EVER SIGNED DEPOSIT SLIPS FOR WIFE

It was in a room upstairs—I don't know what floor. They told me they wanted the pass keys; so I told Sullivan we wanted the keys. And we seized the liquor.

Q—What did the load consist of? A—I believe it was nine barrels of beer, some Canadian ale in boxes, two cases of Guinness' stout and the rest was whiskey.

Q Did Sullivan tell you where that liquor was? A—No, sir.

DENIES SULLIVAN CHARGES

Q Is it a fact that you had completed your search and were on your way out of the hotel when Sullivan told you where the liquor was? A—No.

Q—As the result of a conversation with Sullivan did you direct Fortin or any other officer to the fifth floor where the search was made and the liquor found? A No.

Q—Did you ever talk with Sullivan about the employment of Miss Hatch, or about getting the coat room concession for her? A—No sir.

Q—Did you ever talk with Sullivan or make any arrangement with him to deliver any money to Miss Hatch for you? A—No sir.

Q—Did you ever talk with Sullivan and tell him he was to deliver any money to Mrs. Garrett for you? A—No sir.

Garrett Gives Reasons Why He Ran Away From Trial in Spring

Q Did you ever have any understanding with Sullivan? A—No sir.

Q Any understanding under which you were to give him notice of a raid at the hotel? A No.

Q—Did you ever see Sullivan at 9 Blackwood st.? A—No, sir.

Q—Did you tell Sullivan after the raid of April, 1925, that you didn't know the ticket was out? A—No, sir.

TELLS HIS REASONS.

Q—What were your reasons for not appearing? A—First, I was in all the papers. The papers had written me up and had written [illegible] up so much I thought that I was prejudiced in the minds of the public. Second, I did not like the idea of a special judge, Judge Dillon, being brought from the western part of the state and being assigned to the case, and, third, I didn't like the idea of being ordered examined by two state doctors after already being examined by four city physicians. I thought that if I stayed away [illegible] the public would see it differently and I would get a fair trial.

Q—Were there [illegible] sons?

Did any politics enter into it? A—At the time the election was on for district attorney and Dist. Atty. William J. Foley was being opposed by Sullivan and I was being used as a political football.

CAME BACK VOLUNTARILY

Q—And you came back some time later? A—Yes.

Q—When did you come back? A—Some time in October or November, I think.

Q—You mean December? A—I surrendered in December.

Q—You came in voluntarily? A—Yes.

Q—Was there any particular reason for you coming in in December? A—Only as I said, the election was over and the public prejudice had passed and I surrendered.

Q—When you left the city last spring, did you do so because you had any consciousness of guilt on the indictments which were returned against you? A No.

At 11:25 a. m. Coltman closed and Doyle took [illegible] examination.

Q Before you worked on the police department you had other occupations? A Yes sir.

WHO HE WORKED FOR

Q—You worked for H. P. Hood & Sons from 1912 to 1914? A—Yes [illegible] A—About $35.

Doyle showed him his application for sergeant.

Q—You worked as a foreman [illegible]

Q—What was the compensation? A—On an average of $45 a week.

Q—Did you have any bank account from 1910 to 1914? A—I don't know if I did or not.

Q—Did Mrs. Garrett have any bank accounts between 1910 and 1914? A—I don't know what she had.

Q—Between 1912 and 1919 you were in the navy at $83 a month? A—Yes.

Q—After your discharge from the navy you went back to work for Hood at $35? A—Yes.

Q—Were you married at that time? A—Yes, sir.

Q—In 1919 you joined the police department? A—Yes.

GOT $26.85 A WEEK

Q—What was your compensation? A $26.85 a week

Q—In 1920 what was your compensation? A I got a raise of $200 a year.

Q—Did you open any bank accounts? A—Yes. I had a little over $28 in the Charlestown Savings Bank.

Q—How much did you deposit in 1920? A—I couldn't say.

Q In 1921 what was the compensation? A—I got a $200 raise again.

Q—Did you have any other occupation other [illegible] in 1920? A Yes [illegible]

Q How much did you earn? A—Five dollars a night.

Q—In 1921 where did you live? A—Three Dexter rd.

Q—When did you first become a fight enthusiast? A—I just don't remember.

Q Was it when you were employed in Hood's? A No.

Q When [illegible] Q Was [illegible] A Yes [illegible] A I told you I didn't remember.

Q Was it since you became a patrolman? A—Yes.

Q—Did you bet on fights when you were a patrolman in Division 15? A—I don't believe I did.

FIRST BET AT ARENA

Q—When did you start to bet? A—I couldn't tell.

Q Who were the fighters you bet on? A—I can't tell.

Q—Can't you tell us the first fight? A—No.

Q—Or the time it was held? A—No.

Q—Where was the first bet you made on a fight? A—The Arena or Mechanics Building—I just don't remember.

Q How far back was that when you placed your first bet? A I [illegible] can't tell.

Q Can't you tell us the first, second, third or fourth? A No.

Q—Can you tell us the last bet you made? A—Yes.

Q—What was the last bet you made? A—On Jack Sharkey and Jim Maloney.

Q—When was that? A—I can't remember.

Q—Can you tell us the year? A—I don't remember.

Q—Do you remember what you did with the proceeds? A—No.

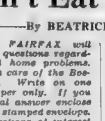
She Loves Him So 'She Can't Eat or Sleep'

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 21 and very much in love with a fellow that used to work with me. He has taken me out many times and told me I was a "great kid." He has been at my house, met my family and his likes every one of them. He was a transferred to another store, but before leaving he said he would see me again if I wanted to. I told him I'd be glad to, but I haven't heard from him yet, and I love him so much I can't sleep nor eat. Do you think he'll come back? LONESOME.



Beatrice Fairfax

Dear Lonesome—I wish I could tell with certainty that he would come again, but how can I? Just try and quiet those doubts, and I'm sure as soon as he gets settled properly in his new job he'll let you hear from him. Stop worrying and get some sleep and meals, and you'll feel better, I'm sure.

No Bed of Roses

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl of 20, have been married three years, but can't keep in with his mother. She is nice to my face but talks behind my back. She goes around with a low class of people and gets sore at me because I won't go with her. I am getting fed up with her line. Will you please tell me what to do or I'm apt to lose my temper with her.

PUZZLED

Dear Puzzled. Life is not a bed of roses, married life least of all, where there are so many personalities to conflict with each other. You may be sure if your mother-in-law is so disagreeable, others have found it out and probably pay very little attention to what she says. Pretend not to notice the things she does, and be as nice to her as you can. Don't lose your temper if you can possibly help it. Patience is the only thing to hold on to, sometimes.

Don't Give Up Hope

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a boy of seventeen, considered good looking. I drive, swim, dance, play tennis, etc. I have moved into a neighborhood and have been living there three months. I haven't met any one I care for of the same faith, male or female. The other day I did meet somebody like me, but out of my faith, and she invited me to spend an evening at her home. Please tell me if I should give up hope yet, or should I accept. I am planning to enter Harvard. Please advise me as you have many others.

LONESOME E. E. B.

Dear Lonesome E. E. B: I wouldn't give up hope yet, if I were you. It is a little difficult for strangers to make friends in a new city, but I thinks as soon as you get started at college and make friends with the boys you will feel better. As for the girls, often girls' clubs post notice of dances and parties to be held, inviting boys from the college to come. And, of course, you can have friends of all kinds and of different religious faiths if you like. You needn't marry them, you know.

How to Plump Hollow Cheeks

Hints From the Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

HOLLOW CHEEKS can be plumped by blowing them out and relaxing. A special massage movement is helpful. Apply a heavy emollient, spread out thumb and fingers over the cheek, bring them together in a quick, forceful clawing fashion. The idea is to rouse the blood streams of the large trapezius muscle, strengthening it, toning it out.

Vanishing creams are designed for the purpose of encouraging powder and make-up to cling on. They do not absorb juice or oil as any cream does, nor is it like a skin surface, but dry out free of harshness and feed it. Cold creams should be used for clean-up treatments. When wrinkles are to be routed by massage a heavy emollient is more effective. It furnishes resistance to the finger tips, so the facial muscles are walloped more vigorously.

When nerves are tying themselves into knots, the old bean aches and life doesn't look any too pleasing, have a hot bath and a shampoo. Hot water is relaxing to muscles, and relaxed muscles tell nerves to behave properly. Drowning the head with soap suds and rinsing the glorious mop with warm water chases aches and worries away. Finish with a cold ducking and friction with a coarse towel. Great little pick-up treatment.

Sage tea will darken grey hair slightly. Make a strong brew, strain, cool and to a pint of liquid add a tablespoonful of rubbing alcohol. If only a few silvery hairs shine out at the temples, they can be touched with mascara. Doesn't last any time, but is temporary help when the occasion seems to demand that tell-tale years be hidden.

Skinny gals should eat raisins. They—the raisins—carry 100 nice fat calories to the ounce. They contain iron, which is supposed to be good for nervous ladies. Dates, prunes, figs and honey are swell-sounding food for the slim who would add poundage to her frame. A quart of milk a day and healthy diet provides material for tooth repair.

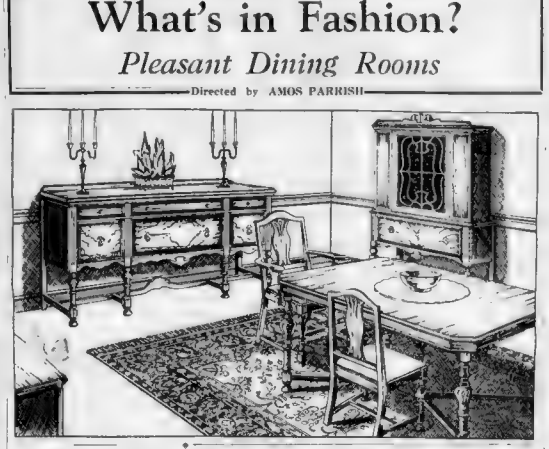
What's in Fashion?

Pleasant Dining Rooms

Directed by AMOS PARRISH



FOOD. That's certainly an important item of existence. Cooking it—serving it—eating it. And if we were thinking about furnishing a home right now, we'd think a whole lot about the pan's of that home that had to do with food—the kitchen and the dining room.

Starting where the food starts, we find we already have a stove, an ice box and a built-in cabinet. If we hadn't had the built-in cabinet and ice box our first kitchen purchases would have been a kitchen cabinet of some kind and an ice box. In fact, if this is a house kitchen—not an apartment, one—we'll probably have an extra cabinet anyway some day, later on, when we start to fill in empty spaces.

So—on to the dining room. And in a way, that's the easiest room in the house to furnish. A rug and a suite of furniture—with curtains at the window, of course.

Fashionable Tudor

And you can find suites of whatever number of pieces the family requires—from five to 20 or so in many, many fashionable styles. Let's look at them.

One of the most in fashion is shown in the illustration. It's of walnut, and if you want a style name, call it Tudor. It's not fancy and it's not plain. That's one reason it's in fashion . . . and has been for a long time . . . and will continue to be.

If you like it, and haven't room for the larger pieces . . . or if you want a smaller table and only four chairs—there's a small suite, called a "dinette" suite, in the same style.

Two other important dining room fashions we're going to consider before chosing our suite are Early American maple or cherry and the Early English oak, chestnut or walnut.

Dresser or Cupboard

The Early American is fine for a smaller dining room. And if you choose this, you'll probably want to pick out separate pieces instead of choosing an entire set. For a table, you might chose the refectory style—the one that pulls out at both ends—or maybe you'll prefer one with drop leaves. Both are in fashion.

For a buffet and china closet, the Welsh dresser will serve. The bottom half is the buffet and the open shelves on top are the china closet.

Or the corner cupboard is a good piece, especially if your space is limited. Being triangular it fits the corner of your room—just as the name indicates.

What rugs go with this furniture? Because we want a well-ensembled dining room — one where everything is harmonious, the all-over oriental patterns are fine for any of it. There's practically no type of furniture you can choose that these oriental patterns won't go with. We've had oriental patterns sketched in both suite.

But, if you use Early American furniture in your dining room, hooked rugs or carpeting that looks like a hooked rug is an even better choice than an oriental pattern. Because hooked rugs were used with the original Early American furniture.

If it's the English oak you decide on, then a rug with big, heavy-looking figures and a good red background fits into the picture. And you can also use in your dining room a rug with a large center pattern . . . a rug which doesn't go so well in the living room. Because in the dining room the table, set in the center of the rug, keeps the big center design from standing out too boldly.

Invitation to Join a Society

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

I have received a notice from a large organization that I have been elected for membership and that I should let their secretary know if I will be present at their next meeting for initiation. Will you be so kind as to inform me the correct way to write a note containing this information as I know it will be read aloud in the meeting previous to my initiation?

N

Your note should read something like this:

My Dear Mrs. Graham

Thank you so much for your kind notification of my election to membership in ——. I was deeply touched by this high honor and privilege . . . will you please be so kind as to tell the members of —— that I deeply appreciate this election, and as soon as there is a vacancy I will endeavor to live up to the fine ideals and qualities for which the group they stand?

I shall attend the meeting on January ——, as you suggest, and I am anticipating, with pleasure, the time when I can avail myself of this opportunity to greet the members of the organization.

Best wishes to you, Mrs. Graham, and to all the other members of

Most sincerely yours,

Acknowledgirg Thanks for Greeting Cards

DEAR MRS BEECKMAN

There has been much discussion in our office as to what is a proper and appropriate answer to a person personally thanking one for a Christmas or a birthday greeting which one has sent to them? E. K.

A good question especially these weeks after Christmas when we are frequently meeting friends to whom we sent cards for Christmas greetings and from whom we are meeting for the first time since Christmas. When we are thanked for these cards we say something like; "I am so happy that you liked it," or "It is very kind of you to say so." It gave me great pleasure to send it to you," or I meant very much to me to send you the card. And I do hope that you had a happy Christmas.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Savory Sausages for Cold Winter Days

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WLEX

SAUSAGE, CRISP, brown but oozing with savory juices—a perfect meal for a cold winter's day. But there is sausage and sausage as soon no doubt have discovered. some fires away to auth ing during cooking, theirs are so highly seasoned with sage that perhaps they do not meet your taste and so you skip your favorite sausage. Shopping for anything is an acquired habit, but just as sure as you find the meat that meet your taste you will be doing shopping for it is prepared by a reliable producer you will find it uniformly good every time it is purchased. Here are the sausages made from New England dressed fresh pork.

Martha Lee

Sausage and wheat cakes, sausage and mashed potatoes or sausage and fried apples are the usual ways of serving this seasonable meat, but have you tried sausage Gastronome, as we made it in the Martha Lee Cooking School last week? It was certainly yummy!

SAUSAGE GASTRONOME

Six links or servings of sausage (parboiled 5 minutes) 2 cups milk, 2 cups cheese, 6 medium potatoes mashed with cup scalded milk, 1½ cups milk thickened with 3 tbsps. flour salt and pepper, 3 tbsps. butter.

Fold mash and heat potatoes until fluffy adding cup hot scalded milk. Line bottom of buttered baking dish with potatoes and lightly press sausage into potatoes to form six individual servings. Cover the top with white sauce and sprinkle with grated cheese and buttered crumbs. Bake in oven to a delicate brown.

BAKED SAUSAGE

Arrange 10 to 12 sausage patties in a shallow baking dish, pour around them a little stewed tomatoes, season with 1 tsp salt and ¼ tsp pepper. Bake until brown in about 20 minutes in a moderate oven (350 deg. F.)

Serve Salad.

SAUSAGE EN CASSEROLE

8 sausages
1 pimiento, minced
2½ cups canned tomatoes
1½ tsps salt
¼ tsp pepper
3 cups cold boiled macaroni or spaghetti
1 medium sized onion, minced

Cut the sausages into 1 inch length. Parboil 5 minutes. Drain and fry until brown. Remove sausages and fat. Brown the chopped onion and add the onion, green pepper, salt and pepper. Then add the tomatoes, pimientoes, macaroni and sausages. Turn into a well greased casserole and bake in a hot oven (400 deg. F.) 20 minutes, or until thoroughly hot and a delicate brown on top. Serves 4 or 5.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

Our Round Table Recipes

SIX AWARDS of $1 each will be published each Saturday for the best contributions published from those printed in this or the preceding week. The household suggestions may be side notes, recipes, but any sort of help in all fairness for housewives. Original recipes or not are open to any one.

GRAPE-NUT ORANGE MUFFINS

2½ tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
¼ cup sugar
2 eggs well beaten
1 cup orange juice
Grated rind 1 orange
½ cup prunes

Sift flour once measure and sift baking powder, salt and sugar. Cream shortening thoroughly. Add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, then flour, alternately with orange juice and rind, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Fold in grape-nuts. Bake in buttered muffin pans in hot oven (425 deg F.) 25 minutes. Makes 25 muffins.—M. E. Cunningham, 5 Curtis st., Salem.

FRIED CAKES WITH APPLE SAUCE

4 tbsps. shortening
3 cups sour milk
1 tsp. baking soda
Flour
Pinch grated nutmeg
1 tsp. lemon extract
1 tsp. baking powder
Sugar
Cream shortening gradually add sugar then add salt, nutmeg, lemon soda, baking powder, sour milk and sufficient flour to make stiff dough. Roll out on floured baking board. Cut with large round cutter and fry in hot shortening until well cooked and nicely browned. Drain and serve. Apple sauce—Mrs. G. Smith, Charlestown, N. H.

Garden Girl

NO MOVIES for me tonight, thank you, I declined the Garden girl. I am going to have some fun making out my spring list of seeds and study the seed catalogs that I've been collecting for weeks. It's like getting Christmas presents ready ahead. Sometimes spring comes on us with a jump and it certainly pays to plan way ahead and have everything in order. And this year I'm going to have a hot bed all my own. I'm going to start it about the middle or last of next month and I'll be a long jump ahead of you with my early lettuce, radishes and what-nots. Here's hoping for an early spring.

Which reminds us to remind you that the new spring seed catalogs are fascinating reading for cold winter nights and it does pay to plan your garden ahead.

Art of Artichokes

"I UNDERSTAND that artichokes are rich in iodine and as I have a tendency to diabetes, I am told they would be very good for me. Can you tell me how to prepare them?" writes Mrs. S. M. L. of Somerville.

It is true that artichokes, besides being a most fashionable vegetable, rate high from a health standpoint. Dietitians and physicians recommend them for hospital patients, even for children of high-chair age, and they rs equally good for well folks.

ARTICHOKES

Select large artichokes of uniform size. Cut off stems and remove some of the bottom leaves. Soak in cold water 1 hour, drain, and cover with boiling salted water, add 1 clove of crushed garlic, the juice of 1 lemon and 4 tsp. of olive oil. Cook until artichokes are soft, about 45 minutes.

Carefully remove from water, and turn upside down to drain. Gently open artichoke by spreading center leaves and remove choke which is located in the center. Serve Hollandaise sauce separately. The leaves are pulled off, the tips dipped in the sauce, and nibbled.

Helpful Hints

A PINCH of baking powder added to mashed potatoes before heating them makes them creamy and light.—Mrs. H. H. Macia, 132 Troy st., Richfield, Vt.

WHEN SEWING with a double thread make a knot in each end instead of knotting it together. This will prevent its snarling and tangling.

WHEN PREPARING foods for frying dredge or dip them first in flour, then in egg and lastly in cracker meal and the coating will stick. The flour does the trick. This is especially good to remember when frying scallops and oysters.—Mrs. Emma A. Herbst, 247 Washington st., Dorchester.

TIGER HEART

By Robert Terry Shannon

"WHATEVER it was, it just came over me like a flood. I feel it right here—" Kate pressed a cinched hand to her heart. "It just centers inside me, and nothing I think or say has anything to do with it. Can you understand that, Connie?"

Connie ignored the query. Her own feelings were not the point of issue. It was important, at once, to understand clearly what had happened.

"Does Jim know about this?"

Secretly, Connie told herself it would be unfortunate if Jim himself shared Kitty's feelings; but tact demanded patience. Opposition, probably, would only add fuel to Kitty's flame.

"Do you think he felt it, too?"

"I'm not sure. He might feel it a little, but I don't suppose a girl like me could interest him much. It would take someone like you, Connie—someone equal, to make him fall. But that hasn't got a thing in the world to do with the way I feel toward HIM. I'm hooked."

Superstitions Awe

Her voice, her own surprise, were colored by a kind of superstitious awe at the emotion that enfolded her. Evidently, she was as puzzled as Connie, but she had convinced herself of the authenticity of her own feelings.

Connie asked: "Haven't you felt this way before about anyone else?"

"Oh, sure; but it was always a girl like me could interest him much. It would take someone like you, Connie—someone equal, to make him fall. But that hasn't got a thing in the world to do with the way I feel toward HIM. I'm hooked."

money and education and society make them as different as, well, as dogs and cats are different?"

"Probably not," Connie admitted, "but Jim is such an individual person. If it is at all possible, don't think you ought to put your feelings aside until you know him better. It's quite possible you wouldn't like him at all."

"I could overlook a lot," Kitty declared, "but maybe I won't have the chance. It's ten to one he's still in love with you."

"Don't you believe that for a minute," Connie protested. "Jim was never really in love in his life. I actually doubt his capacity for love."

"It's a funny thing about me," Kitty mused, "I always thought I was hard boiled, but now I've turned soft. I'm actually scared to death he can't see me at all."

The distress of Kitty was so shockingly obvious that Connie felt all of her own feelings melting; in her own breast, actually, she could share the nervous pain that belonged to Kitty. Instantly, she put her arm around the trouble[illegible] shoulders.

"He may not be worth it to you, but he is to me. How can you know what I'm feeling?"

"You have got to get hold of yourself," Connie urged her, seriously, speaking with vigor through the turmoil of emotion. "You must quiet yourself and try to find out what has happened."

The tide of her emotions began to drain away, leaving her bewildered and, somehow, stranded. Her helplessness, now appalled Connie. To see a girl, a woman so stripped of all concealing pretenses was pitiful.

"I can't understand how it came about so suddenly," she told Kitty. "I should have thought, as wise as you are, that he'd be the last person on earth such a thing would happen to."

"I can't understand it myself," Kitty told her. "If it was anybody else I'd say they were goofy. I had no more to do with it myself than if I had caught influenza."

"Influenza isn't fatal always, and sometimes it is, very very quickly," Connie pointed out; "but a thing like this won't stay stationary. Something is bound to happen—and you'll have to make a decision."

"Without your consent, no matter what he does, he will be helpless. In the end, you will have the final say. You have to decide what you're going to do."

"I suppose I'll do whatever he wants. If he wants me I'll have him, I suppose; but it's funny—me being knocked for a loop like this. You sure don't blame me, Connie?"

"But you're against it! You think I'm making a fool out of myself."

Doubts Happiness

"I don't think you'll find a great deal of happiness with Jim in the future. If I know certain traits in him that made me decide not to marry him, I think you're certain to run against, to come in contact with those same objections."

Connie, despite the sensation she was treading dangerous ground, was swept on by her own honest impulse to risk further the perilous business of trying to give Kitty an idea of what Jim Tracy was like.

"You won't find much sincerity in Jim; there will be a lot of selfishness, and you'll find little interest in your money than in your love."

"You would say that!"

Kitty's bow[illegible] and red lip proved decidedly [illegible] though she had struggled to hold back, revenge that had leaped out of her defeated to her with. It was an accusation [illegible]. Inevitable Connie realized, with swift insight that she herself had provoked this beginning of ill will.

"Don't you believe me—don't you trust me?"

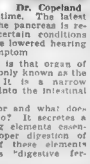
Indigestion Impairs Hearing

Deafness May Appear in Chronic Cases

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

CAN YOU believe that deafness may be produced by certain types of indigestion?

Not long ago I saw an interesting account of a paper read at a medical society. The author contended that certain forms of intestinal indigestion are capable of impairing the hearing.



Dr. Copeland

For a number of years I have believed there is a direct relationship between dyspepsia and deafness. Some of the food authorities have said so for a long time. The latest writer thinks the process is responsible for certain conditions which may have lowered hearing power as a symptom.

The pancreas is that organ of the body commonly known as the "sweetbread." It is a narrow gland opening into the intestinal canal.

What is it for and what does the pancreas do? It secretes a fluid containing elements essential to the proper digestion of fats. Some of these elements are known as "digestive ferments."

The ferments are mysterious substances which appear to act much as yeast does. All the processes of life are dependent on their presence. There are many[illegible] ferments, but those produced by the pancreas are among the most important. Unless they are formed trouble is bound to occur.

It must be recalled that the most digestive processes occur in the intestines and not in the stomach. The function of the intestinal canal is apt to be overlooked.

In simple cases where there is no greater or continuing lack of pancreatic secretion there is apt to be pain in the abdomen after eating. In chronic cases there are the [illegible] symptoms of dyspepsia. Indigestion appears to be slow. Discomfort continues for a considerable time after taking food.

When this failure of intestinal digestion is long continued a number of innovations result. Sugar and fat are not taken comfortably. (2) often happens that one who loves sweets, such as candy and pastry, finds he cannot take them or fat foods without discomfort.

In chronic cases there may be or resemble a symptom as decrease in the hearing power. That may be a pretty far fetched but is within the limits of possibility.

Discuss this matter with your doctor. Not one of the symptoms you have may be due to trouble in the pancreas. But if there is a lack of the pancreatic secretions, he may make up for the lack by giving you an appropriate extract of pancreas. In any event he will tell you how to regulate your diet.

'Big Fellows' of Finance Aren't Super-Geniuses

Wall St. 'System' Arouses Public; Forbes Tells What is What

By B. C. FORBES

The discussion in this column of the widespread notion that there exists "a diabolical Wall Street System" has excited nation-wide interest. Doubtless, abusive, bitter communications will continue to pour in.

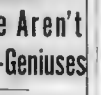
"What has most impressed me during the last two years or more has not been knavery in the highest financial circles, but dumbness."

What is the unvarnished truth about the happenings in Wall Street before and since the 1929 panic?



B. C. Forbes

• • •

Many readers blame the Wall Street "System" for having whooped-up the speculative excitement to the extreme limit of their powers in order to sell out to unwary investors, and for having precipitated the terrific crash when it suited them to do so, thus making it possible for Wall Street gobbers of enormous wealth to fleece the public at panic prices, of securities palmed off on them at boom prices.

• • •

I would be the last person in the world to attempt to justify many of the things which were done, or sponsored, by powerful financial interests during 1928 and 1929. How could I possibly attempt to defend the 1928 speculative jamboree seeing that I time and time and time again sounded warnings condemned inflationary tactics and predicted disaster without any mincing of words?

The truth is, however, that the more reckless phases of the boom were not brought about simply by the operations of any group or groups of Wall Street, but were caused in very large measure by Tom, Dicks and Harrys—all over the land, who became cocksure that they had found a miraculous short cut to wealth without labor. All ranks and conditions joined the intoxicating excitement.

• • •

It is entirely natural that the public, looking back, should denounce Wall st. financiers, Wall st. banking firms. Wall st. banks for having created and issued to the public enormous quantities of new stocks at prices which, by the exercise of reasonable foresight, should have been recognized by the influential underwriters as unwarranted and as certain to drop disastrously when the speculative bubble burst.

• • •

But proper research was not exercised by the majority of Wall st. financiers, banking firms, bankers, brokers alike. In fact, America's financial world had an ignominous lack of outspoken, effective leadership during these crazy days. An effort was made to provide leadership when the inevitable pandemonium broke loose but it completely lacked power and punch, it completely failed to inspire confidence: it did nothing to convince the public that there still were giants left in the nation's financial metropolis, recognized throughout the length and breadth of the continent "Wall st. leaders" were never held in lower esteem than they are now.

Much more could be said in criticism and condemnation of goings in 1928 and especially in 1929.

Consider this, however: It was revealed only the other day that the directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank including the most prominent men in the city, urged and urged the marking up of the rediscount rate in New York to a height which would have discouraged speculation long before Washington tardily took such punitive action. If there were a "Wall Street System," actually its members would be represented on the New York Reserve Bank board. Yet it now transpires that these very men were doing their utmost, long before the crash came, to repress speculation by making it harder for speculators to borrow money at low rates.

Letters received by this column disclose that a vast number of people have the conviction that all the "big fellows" in Wall Street made gigantic fortunes during the boom, cashed in at top prices, kept their money in banks for many months and only recently have been rebuying at bottom quotations.

I believe I may claim, without immodesty, that I have been more closely in touch with Wall Street and its doings and doers than any one of the letterwriters. From all I have been able to gather, I cannot but say frankly that the popular impression of what has happened is far from the cold actualities.

In my judgment, the majority of "big fellows are less comfortably off financially today than they were two or three years ago. Many of them have been either totally or nearly wiped out. I am quite sure that not one in ten is worth more now than in the first half of 1929.

The "big fellows" are not the super-geniuses widely imagined. Their stock market judgment notoriously is imperfect. In my earlier days I sometimes acted as "tip" from some financial nabob—and 75 per cent of the times was stung.

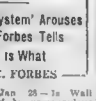
• • •

As I calmly ponder the events of 1928-29-30, my conclusion is that among the "big fellows" there has been less knavery than dumbness. They were just as short-sighted as most of the rest of us—and have paid quite as dearly for their blindness.

B. & A. LIKELY TO STAY WITH N.Y. CENTRAL

By FRANK H. MELOON

Growing conviction that the Boston & Albany will remain with the New York Central in whatever merger plans are finally reached regarding New England railroads has brought investment buying into the stock. Boston & Albany shares are now on an $8 75 annual dividend basis with the payment of $2 extra guaranteed by the New York Central, of which it is a leased line. Current yield is about 6 per cent. Yesterday B & A. advanced $4 a share on a mere dribble of investment buying.



F. C. Knight

F. C. Knight, the new president of the New England Council, his "faith in New England." The Southern New England Telephone Co., of which he is president, has adopted a 5% (public) contention program for the current year. This is about 12 per cent larger than the average annual amount of new construction undertaken by the Southern New England during the past five years.

• • •

U. S. Steel's earnings for 1930 equalled $9.12 a share, amply covering the $7 annual dividend, which is not nearly as bad as the Wall and State Street bears would have had us believe. Bears had feared Steel officials would issue a bullish statement on business conditions. As this was not forthcoming they are now likely to seek to make capital of its absence.

• • •

A non-economist, attempting to discuss economic problems recently, told his public about the current situation as he saw it. This country, he explained, has more wheat and more manufactured products than can be sold. Brazil has a large supply of coffee, Cuba and Java too much sugar while England has too much coal.

• • •

Almost everywhere, except in France, the non-consumers' ills in millions are out of work, millions who would like to buy all these surplus products and the jobless therefore the only puzzle as to non-economist sees it, is to make the adjustment along these lines.

• • •

If this writing gentleman had studied economics he would know, for example, that Brazil alone produces much more coffee annually than the world consumes, and that she is also suffering from a large carryover. No more food and clothing are needed for the unemployed they would not consume coffee beyond the "saturation point." Labor and capital employed are not nearly so eager to lower surpluses of wheat, coffee, sugar, etc., as they are to get even more necessary articles of food and nourishment, and, after these, an automobile and the means of running it rather often.

• • •

A 25 per cent increase in residential construction in 1931 was predicted by Ralph B Wilson, vice-president of the Babson Statistical Organization of Wellesley Hills in addressing the annual convention of the Northeastern Retail Lumbermen's Association.

In voicing his optimistic prediction in relation to increased residential construction Mr. Wilson declared that there would not be a very substantial increase in construction for business. At the present time he said 12 per cent of the office space in the country is vacant, representing a 50 per cent greater total of vacancies than five years ago.

• • •

The greatest pressure of the depression is undoubtedly over now, Mr. Wilson said, and today business leaders are becoming optimistic "because we are 18 months further along in general readjustment. He stated:

"I do not mean that there will be any conspicuous boom in building or business, but we should be working out of the depression by the end of 1931."

The depression and its attendant world wide unemployment, the speaker pointed out, can be traced to one principal cause—excessive producing capacity.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

Fourth quarter report issued by the Steel Corporation was somewhat above last week's estimates, but was in line with predictions made during the course of the day Earnings during the fourth quarter of the year represented 2 cents a share which brought total income for 1930 up to 49 14 a share on the common. The report, however disclosed that more than half of the earnings during the last quarter of the year represented special income and interest on federal tax returns Special income was equal to 12 cents a share on the common stock, leaving a balance of only 28 cents a share from operations.

Rails Recovery Holds Leadership

Recovery in rails has far outstripped that of the industrials so that it would be only logical for the carriers to consider a revision in its position Rail averages are nearly 18 points above the lows reached early in December, where as the industrials are only about 13 points higher

Carloadings Over Last Week's Total

Loadings of revenue freight for the week ended January 17 totaled 725,936 cars, the car service division of the American Railway Association announced This was an increase of 11,667 cars over the preceding week but a decrease of 121,217 cars below the same week last year

Miscellaneous freight loadings for the week of January 17 totaled 275,868 cars, 55,868 less than the same week in 1930 and 79 470 cars under thes ame week in 1929. Loadings of merchandise less than carload-lot freight amounted to 206,536 cars, a decrease of 22,- 332 cars below the corresponding week last year and 32,665 cars below the same week two weeks ago. The current week showed reductions in loadings under 1930 figures may well be due to increased outdoor employment.

Newsprint Merger Is in the Making

Toronto wire states negotiations are under way for a newsprint merger of Abitibi, St. Lawrence, Backus-Brooks interests, Canada Power & Paper Corporation and the Canadian International Paper Company.

Pere Marquette's "Extras" Prospects

Well-informed interests on railroad matters are of the opinion that the $2 a share "extra" dividend on Pere Marquette will not be paid in the near future, as earnings last year were small, with estimates that less than $2 a share will be available for common stock Omission of this "extra' would affect the income of Chesapeake & Ohio to the extent of $4,000,000 as Chesapeake & Ohio holds 244,200 shares of Pere Marquette common stock.

American Telephone Odd-Lo' Buying

Conflicting rumors concerning new financing by United Corporation are puzzling the Street. One version is that new stock will be offered at $18 a share but this is well as other stories meet flat denials in responsible circles.

Bethlehem Steel Report Tomorrow

Interest in the Bethlehem steel report due tomorrow was affected by the disposition to await the U. S. Steel Corporation figures issued after the close. Bethlehem's net for the common has been estimated at a low as 50 cents a share for the final 1930 quarter and around $5.25 a share for the full year.

Ann Arbor Report for Year Is Given

New York, Jan. 28—Ann Arbor R. R. reports for year ended December 31 net income of $127,- 904 after taxes and charges, equal to $3.18 a share on the 40,000 shares of 5 per cent preferred, against net income of $428,892 or $13.19 a common share, in 1929, after allowing for preferred dividend requirements.

Official Sales in N. Y. Exchanges

Sales of stock on the New York Curb Exchange totalled 906,800 shares.

BOSTON CALL IN HARDWARE IS HOLDING UP

New York, Jan 28—The demand for hardware and allied lines is rather moderate in character, Hardware Age will say tomorrow in its weekly market summary January and February are usually dull months in the hardware trade and in this respect the present season is proving no exception to the rule.

Reports from the nation's leading market centers indicate an improved demand in certain sections and unchanged conditions in others.

Prospects are bright in the tanning served by Minneapolis and St. Paul. Less favorable conditions are said to prevail in the Memphis, Atlanta, Chicago, Cincinnati and New York trading areas.

Although numerous price revisions have recently been announced by manufacturers but few changes of importance have become effective. The majority of price changes have been in the nature of slight readjustments to a lower basis. At the same time, several advances have registered in some instances.

Some improvement has been noted in the credit situation. The average of collections is considered fairly satisfactory

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

State Street feels that while sentiment is decidedly favorable and the markets have behaved well, conservative traders do not look for prices to be marked up too much on hopes for this year.

They think it unlikely that the large interests will countenance any over-confident bidding up of stocks that would undo the good that has been done through steadier share prices.

Sentiment among many Boston men is favorable to further commitments in the low priced issues They reason that a normal correction would not worry them by a group off as far as it would the high-priced specialties that may be out of line with earnings in the first quarter of this year.

Ashrewd market analyst bases his contention that prices have turned the corner, along with business, on two fundamental points.

He says that extreme low money, strength in bonds and bank stocks plus a tremendous decrease in brokers' loans, that could only mean new low figures in a rising market are factors too potent to be disregarded for any great length of time.

Following the announcement by Swift that they would shortly enter the canned fruit and vegetable business a leading wire house advised its customers' men that they can considered Libby, McNeill & Libby to be a very attractive appeal at present levels. They feel that the company can profitably enter the canning business and that Libby the logical outlet for their new products.

50 Stock Leaders in Chicago Higher

Chicago, Jan. 28—Fifty representative stocks traded on the Chicago Stock Exchange during the past week had a market value of $2,- 396,360 at the close of business, as compared with $2,217,348,017 at the close of the previous week, according to a compilation today by Otis & Co. This represents an increase of $128,081,343, or 5.77 per cent.

Otis & Co.'s analysis shows that the market value of $2,345,399,960 for these 50 stocks compares with $2,932,683,122 for the same stocks on Jan. 25, 1930. This is a decrease during the year of $587,283,162 or 20.02 per cent.

Fight for Control of Fajardo Sugar

Contest for control of Fajardo Sugar Co., leading producer in Porto Rico, will take place at stockholders' meeting February 2. Committee has written stockholders seeking proxies and saying company has suffered from prevailing depression in sugar industry and from hurricanes of 1928 but its present condition seems to reflect other and remediable causes. President James B. Coombs says committee holds aggregate of only 1962 shares of company's capitalization of 64,778 shares, two members of committee not being stockholders of record.

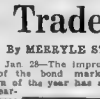
Bond Market a Factor in Trade Recovery

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, Jan 28—The improving status of the bond market since the turn of the year has an important bearing on business recovery.

Though an upturn in stock prices would undoubtedly help business, trade will depend far more on the bond market during 1931 for attracting capital from investors.



M. S. Rukeyser

The weakness in bonds in the closing quarter of 1930, especially during December, was contrary to economic fundamentals, and was caused by necessitous bank liquidation With confidence restored, there has been in recent years a return flow of bank funds into the bond market.

On the basis of past performance the end of a satisfactory bond market is not yet in sight Usually a good bond market, as measured by the capacity of investors to absorb new offerings, lasts at least a full year after the turn upward following a major bear movement And bonds which are seeking to flow into productive uses. A good bond market would aid in the creation of new economic forces. The building of more modern and efficient plants and of better and more up-to-date capital equipment could be financed through the bond market No more than current needs are called. What the country requires is more efficient industrial equipment, which will call for new funds and be consonant with the current mandate for low prices

The impelling motive behind such new bond buying has been the recognition that the spread between prevailing interest rates and bond yields was abnormally large, and therefore presumably temporary.

Prices on high grade bonds normally move in accordance with short term interest rates as prime commercial paper, but during the hysterical December liquidation they got far out of line.

To make the comparison specific, George W. Edwards, economist of Stone & Webster and Blodget, Inc., prepared the subjoined table giving a comparison of the rate on time to six months commercial paper, the yield on high grade bonds, and the spread in December, 1930, and in previous years:

The hearings thus far at Washington before the Glass Senate subcommittee on banking emphasize the extent to which bootlegging has gone on within the Federal Reserve System.

The setup of the system, with twelve regional banks and a supervising board at Washington, is somewhat anomalous and is the result of a political compromise. In 1913, when the law was passed, there was strong political opposition to the idea of a central bank, and yet the banking specialists wanted central banking machinery.

The resultant compromise has important structural defects. The supervising board has little opportunity to initiate policies, though it can veto changes in rediscount rates proposed by regional banks.

In the last seven years, experience has shown that changing rediscount rates is only a partial means of influencing the banking and business situation through the Federal Reserve policy. The reserve system has shown greater initiative and decisiveness in its so-called open market operations, which entail the voluntary purchase and sale by regional banks of government securities and commercial paper, for the purpose of easing or tightening the money market.

The machinery for co-ordinated direction of open market policy through an open market committee of governors, is rather legal in character, and was not definitely provided for in the original act. The open market policy gives the system much of the powers of a central bank, and under the existing law this policy has to be boosted or lowered by means of or less.

Two members of the Federal Reserve Board, testifying before the Glass Committee, complained that the board lacks sufficient authority over the vital question of open market policy, which is almost exclusively in the province of the regional banks. The net effect is to defeat clearly the purpose of supervision which Congress imposed on the Federal Reserve Board.

The present setup, with divided authority and bootlegged operations, has the net effect of making the system unduly dilatory and deliberative whereas at times the economic situation calls for prompt and courageous decisions.

Even Paul M. Warburg, intellectual father of the Federal Reserve System, has directed attention to structural defects.

Northern Pacific Gross Income Lower

Northern Pacific Railroad reports gross income for the twelve months ended December 31, 1930, of $80,644,412, which represents a decline of $16,878,806 from the 1929 total Net operating income for the year totaled $14 293,213, a decline of $7 117,131.

BAN ON SOVIET WOOD PULP IS DEMANDED

Eleven prominent timberland owners headed by Merrill Griswold, an attorney, of Boston, and Clarence C. Stetson, of Bangor, a member of the Maine Council of the New England Council, representing millions of acres in Maine's forest areas, have written to F. X. A. Eble, Commissioner of Customs in Washington, charging that Russian pulpwood and pulp now being imported into the United States is being produced by convict labor. Under the Tariff Act of 1930 and the treasury regulation thereunder, they request an immediate embargo on these products to protect themselves and all other producers of pulpwood and pulp in the United States fro much foreign competition.

They charge that importation of this cheap pulpwood has unstabilized the domestic market bringing about depreciation in the value of timberlands and farm woodlots and causing serious unemployment because owners of timberlands and farm woodlots cannot sell their product for a sufficient price to meet the cost of cutting it and paying taxes, to say nothing of the carrying charges.

They claim that this will in the end have a material effect upon the tax revenue in localities where timberland is grown, and that it is already reducing the value and endangering the security of millions of dollars' worth of bonds secured by timberland and owned by investors throughout the country.

The letter states that the importation of Russian pulpwood and pulp is being done by certain paper companies and that these companies are doing so in order to forestall any movement by the Canadian provinces to limit the cutting and exporting of timber from Canada.

Stock Dividend Is Dropped by Deere

Deere & Co. has omitted quarterly stock dividends of 1½ per cent on the common due at this time. Regular quarterly dividends of 20 cents on the new common was declared, payable April 1 to stock of record March 14.

Oil Output Under Figure Year Ago

Crude oil production during the week ended Jan. 24 averaged 2,-600 barrels daily, compared with 2,094,000 barrels in the preceding week, and 2,100,000 barrels daily, but 505,000 barrels daily less than production in the week ended Jan 25, 1930.

Ticker Talk

By THE WALL STREET SPECTATOR

New York, Jan. 28—The stock market devoted almost all of Tuesday's session to churning around at the upper limits of the recent trading range pending release of the U. S. Steel earnings statement for 1930. Publication of the steel corporation's report, disclosing net of 70 cents a share for the December quarter, or less than half of the dividend requirements for that period, is graphic evidence of the inroads into earnings that the industrial setback is causing.

While much optimistic talk is going the rounds of the improvement which will take place in forthcoming months, indications are that the poor showing of the fourth quarter will carry over into the first period of this year, thus placing most of the leading industrial corporations at a handicap in future comparisons of earnings with the corresponding period of 1930. With this prospect facing the market for some weeks to come, it is not difficult to understand why the current advance is running into definite resistance on the upside.

Thus far this week the market as a whole has done little. The advances in individual issues have been largely at the expense of an overcrowded short interest, which have been most pronounced in such speculative favorites as Auburn, Case Threshing, and the like. Pivotal leaders of the list, American Can, General Electric and U. S. Steel have been consistent laggards.

Liquidation Near End

The failure of the latter group of issues to participate in the improvement of the past fortnight seems to many sources to indicate that the long period of liquidation is reaching its end. It is pointed out that, in all the premature and false rallies in the bear market to date, the group leadership has been in evidence, and only since the low point in the averages on December 16, 1930, has the reverse been true. According to precedent, the bottom of the 1929-1931 decline is being made by the long-awaited and final liquidation of the "blue chips."

Minimum of Risk

In the opinion of recognized investment authority, the following list of common stocks provides the purchaser with diversified selections and a general minimum of risk. The railroad group includes Atchison, New York Central, Southern Pacific, Chesapeake & Ohio, Delaware & Hudson and Chesapeake Railway. The public utility group includes American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, United Gas Improvement, Electric Bond & Share, Pacific Gas & Electric, Public Service Company of North Illinois and Electric Power & Light. Industrials include General Electric, National Biscuit, American Tobacco "B," Borden, du Pont, International Harvester, Procter & Gamble, United Fruit, Carbide, United States Steel, Woolworth, American Can, Coca Products, Sears Roebuck and General Motors.

A. & P. PUTS UP DIVIDEND

Directors of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. declared a quarterly dividend of $1.00 on the common stock, placing issue on a $4 annual dividend basis, as against $3 previously paid.

Colorado Fuel & Iron Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the common, payable Feb. 25 to stock of record Feb. 10. Dividend on the common stock is paid out of surplus, company states.

Poor & Co. has omitted quarterly dividend of 50 cents on class B stock due at this time. Declared a quarterly dividend of 37½ cents on the class A stock, placing the issue on a $1.50 annual basis, against $1 previously, payable March 1 to stock of record Feb. 16.

Lima Locomotive Works, Inc., has declared a special dividend of $2, payable February 17 to stock of record February 7. No payments have been made since 1928, when the $1 quarterly dividend was omitted.

Crude Oil Output Gains During Week

American Petroleum Institute estimates that the daily average production of crude oil in the United States for the week ended Jan. 24, 1931, was 2,110,800 barrels as compared with 2,094,000 barrels for the preceding week, an increase of 16,800 barrels.

The daily average production east of California was 1,575,400 barrels, as compared with 1,551,600 barrels, an increase of 23,800 barrels.

American Ice Has Gain for the Year

December profit of American Ice Co. and subsidiaries was $81,675 after interest, but before federal taxes and depreciation, against $89,886 in December, 1929. For year ended Dec. 31, 1930, profit before federal taxes and depreciation amounted to $5,890,078, against $5,-616,371 in 1929.

F. W. Woolworth & Co., including domestic and Canadian subsidiaries, for 1930 has net income of $34,736,-250, equal to $3.56 a share, against $35,664,252, or $3.66 a share in 1929.

Profit and loss surplus on Dec. 31 totalled $72,009,972, against $61,304,-130 at the end of 1929. At the end of 1930 there were 1881 stores in operation, against 1825 at the end of 1929.

The consolidated balance sheet showed current assets of $55,-672,783 Dec. 31, against $51,502,638 in 1929 and current liabilities of $3,-843,895, against $3,035,117. This leaves net working capital Dec. 31 of $51,828,918, against $48,467,521 at the end of 1929.

U. S. Is Second as Builder of Shipping

United States jumped from fifth to second place among shipbuilding countries in 1930 by launching 246,687 gross tons of merchant vessels of 100 gross tons or more, which was almost double 126,063 tons sent down ways in 1929, according to Lloyd's Register of Shipping. Great Britain and Ireland retain ranking position, being responsible for 1,478,563 gross tons in 1930, a decrease of 44,000 gross tons from 1929.

Vocal and Instrumental Music and Two Talks Are Heard Locally

Highlights on the air tonight include vocal and instrumental features and two educational talks. Among the musical features heard tonight are two duets, Ethel Bartlett and Mae Robertson, noted British pianists, and Ethel Fox, operatic soprano and Allan Jones, concert tenor, who will broadcast during the Columbia concert heard over WNAC at 10:30.

On the Shilkret concert program over WEEI at 8:30, Evelyn Herbert, soprano, makes a return microphone appearance, this time in company with Robert Halliday, baritone who co-starred with her in "The New Moon."

A third musical program is the Pleasure hour heard over WBZA at 9:30, which will feature tonight Tandy Mackenzie, Hawaiian-American baritone, as part of the inaugural program to welcome the addition of 19 stations to the chain.

Dr. Bayard T. Crane, medical director of the New England Sanatorium at Rutland, will speak on WEEI at 7:30 tonight with the purpose of interesting the air audiences in the cause of those tubercular men and women who are faced with the problem of earning a living. Dr. Crane will be introduced by Dr. George H. Bigelow, State commissioner of health, a familiar talk heard on WNAC at 7 p. m. will be given by Philip Stockton, president of the First National Bank of Boston. His subject is "A Short Review of Business and Financial Conditions."

Medical Director

DR. BAYARD T. CRANE, director of the New England Sanitarium at Rutland, who will give a talk on the vocational activity at his institution over WEEI at 7:30 tonight.

RADIO Personalities

In one of Boston's popular "stand-up-and-ask-for-it" eating emporiums a microphone system has been installed whereby the waiters each call out their orders through a mike to the chef on the floor below, where are five sections with a microphone for each. We ats there yesterday and had the pleasure of hearing a complete broadcast of the "One Hamburg sandwich for station B." The REVELERS have temporarily deserted the air-waves three weeks' tour with WILL ROGERS in behalf of the Red Cross drive for the drouth-stricken areas of the Middle West . . . ANDRE DE FOUQUIERES, member of the French aristocracy and the "Grover Whalen" of Paris, makes his radio debut over WNAC tomorrow night . . . Andre, fashionable man that he is, once stated that he would rather be seen dead in a night club than any second one hour after the official season is closed . . . VAUGHN DE LEATH, "Original Radio Girl," has been loaned temporarily to WTAM, Cleveland. She may soon be back on the chain programs from N. Y. . . . Another sign of spring: two NBC artists, GEORGE DILAVORTH and GITLA ERSTINE just tied the holy bond . . . The seven actors in Real Folks play 19 distinct parts in the weekly skit.

disclosed, "I have sent Betty Canfield down to headquarters to wait for us. There are some questions she will have to answer tonight. I am sorry to say that I had to procure her attendance for the autopsy, so that she can identify the body, and I have also subpoenaed for the poor parents of the dead girl for the same purpose. I shall also have to question them. Meanwhile, I think I hear the stentorian boom of a familiar voice."

The next moment there came through the doorway a huge man with curly red hair, large, bold, blue eyes and a florid complexion. The newcomer shook hands grimly with the police commissioner. He was a man of vital and magnetic personality, who was such a firebrand while he was district attorney. "Horn-swoggle" Thatcher Colt's adjective for him. The two men disagreed on almost every known subject with the exception of their liking for certain German beers and their admiration for each other.

Ambition

Doughtery was known to have high political ambitions, and it was freely predicted that he would be Governor of New York before he received extreme auction. He had a high respect for a legally-trained mind, and feared indecision as crime men fear poverty. I soon learned that Doughterty had kept himself informed about my police search for Geraldine Foster and was fairly familiar with many details of the case.

"Well, Colt," he said, "your bunch was right. It was murder—and a pretty messy one. I have decided to take personal charge of the affair, and you may work, under me, I shall bring the murderer to the electric chair as quickly that it will be a lesson to the whole country."

"Conflict of authority?" barked Dougherty.

"Not at all, old fellow. As the ranking head of the force, I am merely doing my constitutional duty. Never forget that it is written in the book, the commanding officer shall be held responsible for the completeness of the investigation."

"You know, I'm sorry, done, though," protested the district attorney. "However, I shall be glad to have your help. Now, what's what?"

"Isn't Hogan with you?" asked Colt.

"Sure!"—and the little man with a bald, ovoid head, clapped quickly through the door. He was Dougherty's favorite detective, a county detective with more than ordinary ability, assigned to the district attorney's office. In his hands I noticed that he held a white package tied with red ribbon.

"Hogan might as well listen, too," explained Colt, and then, in a brisk and magnificently compressed statement, he gave the district attorney a more complete conspectus of the crime, from the first appearance of Betty Canfield at headquarters down to the finding of the corpse.

"Some lover of hers did it," said Dougherty promptly. "He probably got the girl in trouble, then threw her over, and killed her. There's too much of this sort of thing going on—too many crimes of passion."

"Perhaps," murmured Thatcher Colt.

"You has the nose on your face," declared Dougherty. "All we have to do is to find who was the father of the child, talk with some of her boy friends."

Thatcher Colt lit his pipe.

"Yes," he said, "And, by the way, Hogan, I know you think you have a clue in that package you have there. Is that a Christmas present you have found?"

"Yes, it is—it's a silk muffler," said Hogan. "I found it under the sofa. I would like to hang on to it for a while, if you don't mind."

"Not at all—I've already had a look at it," answered Colt agreeably. "Also, I have telephoned downtown and found that this house is owned by a Mrs. Hepburn, who rents it furnished. It will be as you say, simple to find out the name of her tenant—if the tenant gave her the real name. And, by the way, I am temporarily removing some evidence from the scene."

Dead Pigeons

"What's inside the bag?" asked Dougherty promptly.

"Seven dead pigeons," answered Thatcher Colt. "About midnight, join me at headquarters, will you, Dougherty, and we will go over what we have. Mind?"

"Okay," said Dougherty, and added after a moment's thought, "except I haven't arrested the murderer before then."

"You won't," chuckled the commissioner, and with a nod to me, he led the way down to the street.

Crowd There

Having eluded the ambush of a squad of newspaper reporters waiting to obtain Thatcher Colt's personal version of the Peddler's Road affair, we hurried on toward the Commissioner's office. As we entered the octagonal reception room with its old-fashioned wood-work and its transoms of stained glass, a curious sight met our eyes.

Most of the people concerned in the mystery of Geraldine Foster were gathered before their haggard eyes staring up into our faces. For the moment, I was startled by the hint of such an organized and appropriate convocation. Then I realized that by the telephoned orders of Thatcher Colt all these people had been, quickly brought to Headquarters. Seeing the Commissioner, the father and mother of the murdered girl stood up with pathetic promptness as they guessed the truth without having been told. Thatcher Colt spoke to them briefly and in low tones, while my glance leaped around the room. Among the others gathered in the waiting room were two young men whom I judged to be Bruce Foster and Harry Armstrong. Neither resembled Geraldine, so I could not tell which was the brother and which the lover. Aloof from these others and looking pale and worn sat Betty Canfield.

With another reassuring word to the parents, Thatcher Colt hastened into the private office and I followed him. On the desk he laid the pillow case with the dead pigeons.

Then he dashed on into a small retiring room—a partition affair built for his personal use—and almost instantly I heard the sound of rushing water. Mr. Colt was taking a shower. In an amazingly short time, he came out again, completely re-dressed, as immaculate and fashionable as if the hour were morning and he were just reporting for work.

Meanwhile, I had observed that I said out on the desk the various objects he had carried—among them the envelope of hair, the face cloth with the crimson stains, the watch, and the axe, which I had wrapped in a newspaper.

For the next few minutes I was busy on the telephone, calling various officers for the commissioner. Presently the deputy chief inspector arrived, followed by Doctor Cieslek, one of the most scholarly chemists attached to the office of the medical examiner.

Without parley, Thatcher Colt issued a series of crisp, precise orders. He wanted the owner of the house on Peddler's Road found at once and brought downtown. A detective must also be sent to Wisner's, a chemist shop on Madison ave., to find out what was contained in three large bottles sent upon the urgent request of Doctor Maskell on Christmas Eve.

Without pausing for comment, he then gave instructions for examining the axe found drawn under the nails of the corpse and the hairs contained in two envelopes. Doctor Cieslek nodded Cieslek aside and in a low voice communicated certain other instructions, not a word of which could distinguish. Also something passed from the hand of the detective to the hand of the chemist. I caught a glimpse of that—it was the washcloth found in the murder house.

Port of Boston News

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Forty-five thousand bales of Swedish woodpulp is now being unloaded at the Hoosac Tunnel Docks from the holds of the American flag freighter Schenectady of the Moore-McCormack Line. This shipment weighs about 6400 tons.

Paper mills all along the eastern seaboard, absorbing the supply as fast as it is available, have made it one of the outstanding local imports.

William Nevin, general passenger agent of the line, returned here after a trip to Denmark, Sweden and Norway where he made a survey for passenger possibilities and states that he is going to recommend that the lines take this phase of the business up in the regular run.

FAST RUN

Making a smart run from Port Said and the westerly side of the Suez Canal in 16 days, the S. S. Ptytomene, Blue Funnel Line, exercised her local representatives by arriving here before schedule on her first appearance in Boston harbor. She came from Dutch East Indies ports with a rich cargo of rubber, spices, sisal and general merchandise. She carried 800 tons of cocoanut oil in her tanks.

STUDY TESTIMONY

Determination as to whether barges shall be preferred against the master or other officers of the motor steamer William M. Page, owned by the Mystic Steamship Co., which went aground off Shinnecock, L. I., will be made by the London inspectors after a study of the testimony in the case, which was forwarded by local inspectors.

UNLICENSED PILOT

A finding has been made by local inspectors that the harbor tug Taurus was being navigated by an unlicensed pilot at the time of the four-cornered crash in which the tug and the tug S. P. Shotter and the steamers Sagoe Brothers and Sewalls Point figured near the North Chelsea dry docks. At the time of the collision the tug was being operated by its mate who was not licensed, it was found. Report will be made to the collector of customs.

ATTEND CONFERENCE

Boston officials will attend the United Kingdom Freight conference in New York. Edward M. Hagarty, freight manager of the Cunard Steamship Co., and Fred E. Lamb, freight manager of the International Mercantile Marine Co., have gone to the metropolitan city meeting to be held today. Tomorrow, at the conference, Arthur Lane, traffic manager of Rogers & Webb, will be in attendance.

Upper Silesia Shaken by 'Quake

Berlin, Jan. 28 (AP)—A violent earthquake shock was felt this morning in Hindenburg, Upper Silesia, and throughout the coalmining district. Damage was believed to have been comparatively slight.

The province of Silesia, about 40 miles from Krakow, is an iron mining district. The capital, also called Kattowitz, has a population of about 32,000.

In Hindenburg the inhabitants were panic-stricken, but there were no casualties.

Pay This Just Debt Now

To the public demand, voiced by the Hearst newspapers, that the federal government pay in cash the adjusted compensation certificates of all veterans presenting them, the national executive committee of the American Legion has now added the weight of its emphatic endorsement.

Congress ought not to turn a deaf ear to the American Legion's recommendation regarding a matter that involves the honor of the nation as vitally as it does the immediate needs of the veterans.

With other veteran organizations the Legion shares an intimate knowledge of the hardships that have driven more than 2,500,000 veterans to obtain loans from the Veterans' Bureau upon their adjusted compensation certificates.

Better than any senator or representative in Congress, the Legion can bear witness to the urgency of the need among the veterans in every state in the Union for the assistance which the prompt redemption of these certificates will provide.

These certificates represent the government's confession of a debt for services rendered. They are just as much a part of the war debt as any other government obligation.

This debt will have to be paid some time. It can be paid now by slowing up the rapid rate at which we have been liquidating the national debt for the last ten years.

After the war the government adjusted the compensation due the owners of railroads by PAYING THIS DEBT IN CASH.

To more than 7000 war contractors it GAVE ADJUSTED COMPENSATION IN CASH.

To 50,000 government employes, who received an annual salary of $2500 or less during the war, IT GAVE ADJUSTED COMPENSATION IN CASH.

But instead of adjusting in cash the compensation due the veterans the government issued to them 20-year endowment policies.

And for the small amounts which the government permits them to borrow on these policies it compels the veterans to pay 6 per cent interest, compounded annually, for their own money.

Why should the veterans, most of whom defended this country during the war for $1 a day and subsistence, be forced to wait years to collect their debt?

Why should the veterans be forced to pay 6 per cent interest on the small amount of money that they are permitted to borrow on these certificates?

By paying this just debt now the government will enable millions of veterans to tide themselves and their families over the most desperate days they have ever faced.

By paying this just debt now the government will enable its creditors to put hundreds of millions of dollars into circulation —North, East, South and West.

Paying this just debt now, when millions of veterans need it more than they will ever need it again, will turn loose millions of dollars whose expenditure will give to general business a powerful stimulus that will benefit the entire country.

We put the truth in words when we acknowledged this debt of the veterans and issued them adjusted compensation certificates.

A Polyglot Prince

At Home in Six Languages

The Prince of Wales, "world's greatest salesman," speaks six languages. That may be one secret of his success in popularizing the British Empire and British goods among other nations. Americans who venture abroad to drum up customers for our export trade would do well to follow his example. It is difficult to sell anything by sign language—yet many of our foreign sales representatives work on that principle.

The Prince's linguistic repertoire includes (besides English) French, German, Italian, Danish, Welsh and Gaelic. He also knows a few words of Hindustani, Hottentot and Zulu, which he picked up in his Eastern and African trips.

The only important language, except Chinese and Russian, that he has failed to master is American. He likes our tongue, but says that he has never been in the United States long enough to learn it. That is easily understood. Many of us who have lived here all our lives have the same trouble—it changes too fast.

Colonels in Bloomers

Oklahoma Has 'Em

Down South and out West they get all the breaks. There is Oklahoma. It recently elected W. H. Murray governor. Murray is never called Murray. He is known up and down the State, and everywhere else, as Alfalfa Bill. One of his first acts as governor was to name two women as colonels in the national guard. And when asked if they would be issued uniforms, he said, "Bloomers, I guess."

Or there is Huey Long in Louisiana, who wore green pajamas to a reception in honor of the German navy. Some years back there was Bob Taylor in Tennessee, who went after votes —and got them—with a fiddle. And there is always Tom Heflin.

Why can't our public servants up here put on a show for us now and then? We'd like a few fiddles, or a pair of green pajamas, or a couple of colonels in bloomers. All we get is public service, and someumes not much of that. We want a run for our money.

The tragedy depicted here
Is just "experimental."

Experiments so noble that
Both shot and shell are needed;
Tests of ten long years and more
Is proof they've not succeeded.

We would expect, naturally, to see them in the throes of the "blessings" of Prohibition . . . Corruption, bribery, contempt for laws, widespread intemperance, rum-running, hijacking and all our other dry law "blessings."

How long do you suppose the people of Europe would stand for such a state of affairs?

You guessed it. NOT VERY LONG!

Listen, World! -:- You Can't Make Everyone Glad -:- By Elsie Robinson

"I DO SO want to make everyone happy," she begins her letter . . . and then follows it up with five pages of grief.

Many people don't deserve happiness. Many of the people you love best . . . or the people who seem most cruelly afflicted . . . don't deserve happiness. They have notions and habits which are a nuisance to others and an affliction to themselves. There is only one way of curing such notions and habits and that is by SUFFERING FROM THE CONSEQUENCES. If you, in your desire to play God, step in and relieve them of the consequences, will you be doing them any good? And how long will such "happiness" last? It won't do them any good. It will do them positive harm. And it won't last.

Even God, whom you would ape, does not hand people happiness on a silver platter. He lets them suffer, to the full, the consequences of their own folly. He gives them the tools to help themselves—that is all. You can do the same. If they'll use those tools—more power to them. If they won't LAY OFF AND LET THEM DO THEIR OWN LEARNING.

You can't make everyone happy. Many people wouldn't know what to do with happiness if you gave it to them. They actually don't want to be happy, in spite of their whines and wheezes. They prefer being martyrs, because it is one of the quickest and surest ways of grabbing the spotlight. It is useless to dry their tears.

Of course, if you want to make a human blotter of yourself, hop to it. But I warn you, from extensive personal experience, that you can blot and blot 'n' BLOT and they'll still drip despair.

You can't make everyone happy. But you've no right to let that make you bitter. As a matter of fact, much of our effort to make others happy is prompted by egotism. It gives us a Big Bang to think that we're arranging their lives. But, we've no right to arrange other lives either for weal or woe. It is their sacred privilege to do their own arranging. AND IF THEY EVADE OR MISUSE OUR EFFORTS AND SPOIL OUR PLANS WE'VE BROUGHT THE DISAPPOINTMENT ON OURSELVES.

And if we haven't acted out of egotism . . . if we have acted from pure benevolence . . . then, less than ever, should we be bitter. For a good deed is its own reward.

After all, if you're really bent on uplifting humanity, the best service you can render is to be happy and healthy yourself. Keep your accounts in order, live up to your own ideals, render help if and when it is asked or indicated—and you'll have performed PLENTY.

Words of the Wise Men -:-

Let the vanity of the times be restrained, which the neighborhood of other nations has induced, and we strive apace to exceed our pattern. —Bacon.

The shortest and the surest way to prove a work possible is strenuously to set about it. —South.

No life that breathes with human breath
Has ever truly longed for death. —Tennyson.

Think It Over

DRAWN BY HAL COFFMAN

You may eat at a first-class hotel, or sleep as long as you would like, or make as much money as you are worth, or have all the fun that you deserve.

But if you have good health, you are better off than the richest invalid.

Like air and water, we take health for granted. It is only when we don't have it that we know its value.

Health is easy to keep if you have it. But it is hard to regain when you have lost it. Watch your health, therefore, and remember that its worst enemy is not the weather, but late hours, bootleg liquor, and similar stupidities that cost money and get you nowhere.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Racketeers on Broadway

NEW YORK, Jan. 28—With most of the fortunate winds out of familiar Broadway sails, racketeers are concentrating on the shakedown as a means of livelihood. When everything else fails, the breach of promise suit is one of the surest of all gyps. It is apotheosized in the Broadway comedy "Oh Promise Me!"

There are some 200 shysters in the Tenderloin section who will take any case presented, no matter how flimsy, on "a percentage of the receipts" basis. They do not actually file suits but threaten and harass husbands who have had nights out.

Such actions are never taken against the professional philanderer. He has no reputation to lose. It is the respectable fellow with an occasional lapse who is the target. Three mysterious suicides in the past few months are attributed to the fear of impending disgrace.

While New Yorkers are often victimized, the prize packages are the outlanders in town for a frolic. Scouts angle for them in hotel lobbies. Solid, substantial, they are lonely away from the family fireside. So they are baited with the "party girls."

A bit of night life is adroitly suggested. The stranger is not particularly interested but with a cocktail or so mellows. He is jockeyed into the company of one of the sympathetic ladies and under her blandishments babbles of his wife, his home and the kiddies.

That is all she wants to know! Such information assays pure gold. There is often not even hand-holding in the home going taxi. Nize baby! Next day she rounds him to her apartment for a cup of tea. Several drop in casually and are introduced. Witnesses!

The stranger goes home. In due time the extortionist shows up. She has learned from him the name of his best friend and goes directly to him. She is a betrayed woman. He promised to marry her. The poor victim loves his wife, children and home above all else. So he pays.

At one of those high-blown literary teas the guest of honor was a former princess. To those grouped about she told of her christening. She was taken to the event in a gold coach drawn by three teams of white horses, the coach surrounded by mounted hussars in scarlet and gold trappings.

"Different from your baptizing," I whispered to Bide Dudley also standing on the fringe of the group. "Quite," he grinned. "I was ducked in a crick!"

* * *

At the same tea a professional drawing room hound evidently partook of a cocktail or so too many and looked a trifle blurred.

The Rialto appears to have developed a sudden yawn for English players. Three years ago the hit plays featured chiefly British stage folk. Today about the only English actor with a steady box office draw is George Arliss and he long since sold himself down the river to Hollywood.
